A NATIONAL CONVENTION PROPOSED.

Some of our Democratic cotemporaries we perceive, are suggesting the propriety of a National Convention of the conservative citizens of the States, to take into consideration the best means calculated ment of the struggle no community was to stop our civil war; if this is not considered expedient, then a meeting of the nity had a greater stake in the success of Congressmen lately elected is suggested to convene for a similar purpose. we see no hope of good resulting from either of the gatherings suggested; but on the contrary the probability of much harm. Our country must bleed on for some time yet before she is prepared for counsels which in the end must bring about a peace. Our government is in the possession of a party which is governed by fanaticism and not reason; radicalism has triumphed in the Cabinet, and its behests are visible in the field; it has its own programme of operations and insists upon its being im plicitly obeyed. This radical determina tion to make the war bend to the purpose of negro emancipation we thought we saw gradually gaining the mastery in the Cabinet several months ago. For that reason we should have been glad, had Gen. McClellan been removed from the head of the Potomac army nine months Bince. We are now desirous for the arri val of the period fixed for the gallant Burnside's decapitation; and for the sub stitution of Fremont in his stead, and for the complete development of all the secret measures which the Abolitionists intend to inflict upon us. When they come to the end of their string, then, and not till then, will it be time for the conservative to meet in National Convention.

Measures utterly condemned by the people are now being insisted upon with increased vehemence and tenacity. This the country, for the pres ent, will have to bear; and a National Convention which would interfere with hairman, Stilson Hutchins, sub would only have the effect of arousing per haps a civil war here amongst ourselves. Witness the howl of fanatic fury which has just been heard from the Abolition press, because of a fabricated rumor that certain Democrats in New York were engaged in a plan for stopping the war.-How would it be, then, if a National Con vention were to assemble and take ground therefore "Resolved, That we regard it as the duty against the radical measures of the Ad ministration?
