To URSDAY MORNING, JAN. 15. THE ELECTION OF U.S. SENA

The Pittsburgh Gazette is a curiosity in is way, in its afternoon issue of Tuesday rested its readers with the following larming paragraph:

The sympathisers with the rebellion seem determined to break up the Union byla resort to the same violent and revoidionary measures which forced secession npon a majority of the now rebel States, Agains moment our own State capitol is overrun with thousands of armed despera-does, assembled to compel every Dem-odiatic member of the Legislature to do their bidding in the matter of the election of a United States Senator.

these 'thousands of armed desperaburg, seem to have conducted themselves with marked propriety, during the cauvassfor U, S. Senator. Had any excess en committed by them we should have had it, with the usual embellishments, tellegraphed all over the the election of a United States Senator; they were not armed desperadoes or sympathizers with treason, but that stubborn determined class, which, thirty-five years ago, prevented our State government from being usurped by Ritner and Thaddens Stevens. They, after being condemined by the people, resolved to hold fast increasing National calamities. on to power and treat the election of Gov. Porter as if it had never taken place; the indomitable Democracy, under their couregeous leader, were not to be trifled with in that way, and before their indignation trenson hid its head. Some of the same character were in Harrisburg on Tuesday last to see that Cameron, with the profits of his horse contracts, did not corrupt some poor fellow whose poverty might subject him to temptation, They accom-plished their mission by securing the elecion of a Democrat over Cameron, and after their achievement they quietly and rreturned to their respective homes. But there was another class of persons in Harrisburg, laboring for the election of Cameron, of a very different character from armed desperadoes." Alexander Cumnings, the smooth tongued representative of all that is hypocritical, both in religion and politics he whom Cameron, while Secretary of War, entrusted two millions of dollars to without security; he was there, the centre of a clique of scoundrels the most corrupt in Pennsylvania. This class of harpies are not "desperadoes," in the Gazette's sense; nothing of the kind. They are sly, insinuating gentlemen o the Uriah Heep stripe. Mild and soft spoken, they fawn where they expect gain

Just now they monopolise the principal contracts for the government and declare any one a traitor who merely talks of peace. They have, in the last fifteeniyears, belonged to every political organization in the country, and are always found where plunder is to be secured This is the class who championed Cameron's course on Tuesday last, but all their means of corruption and blandishment did not cause one single Democrat to swerve from the path of duty. Cameron had no trouble in buying all the Republi. cans, save one; but no Democrat was in the market.

But what reliance can be placed in the statements of a journal which, like the evening it published the paragraph above quoted, dippantly charging treason against a mejority of the representative in our e, but after the treason is con-

Legislature, but after the treason is summated, it speaks of it as follows:

Mr. Buckslew has been for a number of years one of the most prominent men of his party, and is a man of respectable character and fair talents; and we fervently hope that he will prove true to the Government and to the State iz the important trust to which he has neen called. We are the more inclined to bope this from the wote inclined to bope this from the work in caucies. F. W. We would advise the Gazette not to "hope" for much from Mr. Buckalew; if not yet come to attempt the retrieval of Senster Cowan-can not satisfy its exactions, it has but little to hope for from that able, constitutional Democrat, our newly elected U. S. Seuator.

A Victim of Rope Walking. At Havens, on the 6th instant, Farini the rope-welker, was carrying his wife across a calle, suspended sixty feet high in the Plaza Theatre. They had completed the passage within four feet, when the audienceappianded, and the woman bowed in acknowledgement. In doing so she lost her balance and called to her husband to catch her as she was falling. This he attempted to do, and caught by the skirt of her dress; but the frail fabric was not impetus given to hold her with the impetus given to her descent by the jall, and the dress gave way leaving the piece in the unfortunate man's hand as he hung suspended from the rope, sustaining him celf by the joint of the kpee by means of which he saved himself, and she went crashing down into the seats. She was taken up, someties, but survived three days. The wealthest ladies in Havana attended to do, and caught by the skirt of her dress; but the fail, and the freely sustaining him celf by the joint of the kpee by means of which he saved himself, and she went crashing down into the seats. THOUGHTS OF PEACE. Lincoln took the oath of office as President of the United States, and delivered the customary inaugural address, which contained the following sentence:

South you cannot fight always, and when, after much less on both sides and no gain on either, you case fighting, the old dentical questions as to terms of inter course will be again upon you."

There is more wisdom in this passage, ve venture to assert, than ever was contained in the same number of words from Mr. Lincoln's pen. He plainly declared that, however long we might wage war, the dispute impending when he spoke could not be settled by the sword. Mr. Lincoln was evidently prepared for a conjunction like the present condition of the war when he wrote his Inaugural Address. How so little has been won, how so much has been lost, need not be dis cussed; it is with the stubborn and sorrowful result that we have to deal. "We cannot fight always," said Mr. Lincoln, and now, after two years of bitter trials, the

But if we are not to "fight always," how, long ought we to fight, and who is to be the judge of the time when we are to quit, or at least prepare to quit does," if they were really present at Har. Is Mr. Lincoln the proper person to call the time, or shall we leave it to his Cabinet, or to the fanatical body that disgraces the name of Congress, or to Mr. Stanton? We respectfully submit that no one of the persons or powers mentioned are fit to leclare when the fighting shall cease .ountry. There were some Demo. And if all or none of them be competent crats in Harrisburg on Tuesday to look to or willing to say we have fought long enough, does it not become the duty of THE PEOPLE to take up the matter, and to pronounce that—enough blood has been shed, enough money has been squandered, enough speuclation, plunder, and rascality have been enacted, and we must at least endeavor to put a period to our people say "Amen!"

We do not propose to undertake the bitter task of reciting our mistakes, our misfortunes, and our defeats. The question before us is whether Mr. Lincoln's idea that we could not end the dispute by fighting is correct. And, if yea, when ought blows to cease? These are the matters to be discussed, and we are not to be deterred from dealing with them by any slang depreciations of the "Peace Democracy," uttered by contractors, or jobbers, or paymasters, or military leeches, or any other sort of vermin or vampyre now tor-turing or eating out the vitals of the body politic. We quote from Mr. Lincoln's inaugural, once more: "I venture to add that to me the convention would seem preferable, inasmuch as it allows the amendments to originate with the people themselves."

About the period of the delivery of these words, Mr. Seward, too, expressed himself in favor of a Convention. Can we have better authority, then, for urging the calling of a Convention of all the States to settle the terms of future intercourse between the thirty four States that did and the states to settle the terms of states that did and the sta originate with the people themselves."
