Our people have also been long regarded as very thrifty and ecchomical in everything, and, taking our own experience, we think that reputation well earned. This is all very well in its proper place, but we do not like to see the spirit of economy carried too far, as we have on several occasions of late. We see illustrations of this universal desire to aconomize at every grand concert in our city—and those which we have been favored with of late proved no exception. It might naturally supposed the ception. It might naturally supposed that a person who had examined the programme for one of these entertainments would be satisfied with the performance of such pie ces as are set down in the bills, with, perhaps, the addition of one or two more introduced as encores when the performance of the piece announced is above me But we felt actually mortified on Saturday evening, to hear eight out of the ten pieces announced in the bill en-cored, one doubly.
