Destruction of Oil. At an early hour yesterday morning, some 2,000 barrels of oil were destroyed near the ferry lianding at the Point opposite the mouth of Penn st. Several boats laden with oil in bulk were moored near the landing, and one being in a leaky condition, some of the oil floated off on top of the water. If When the ferry boat from this side had landed, the fireman threw overhoard a shovel tall of cinders, which set fire to the oil, the flames communicating to three of the boats, which, with their contents, were totally destroyed. One of the boats floated off and was met nearly ten miles down the Ohio, early in the morning, burning fiercely. Another of those destroyed was a zinc lined barge, built expressly for carrying oil, and valued at $1,000. The total loss is from $8,000 to $9,000. Measrs. Spectral Analysis.

A practical application is likely to be made of the beautiful results of spectral analysis in the casting of steel. It is important to know the exact moment at which to shut down the cover of the furnace during the melting of metal; time must be allowed for the escape of the gaseous products which are injurious to the steel, but if that time, be prolonged, an injurious effect of another kind is produced. To meet this contingency, it has been proposed to test the gases as they Spectral Analysis.

Why are nails designeted by the terms sixpenny, eightpenny, &c.? In Sheffield, England, they used to be sold in small quantities by the hundred, and the terms fourpenny, sixpenny, &c., referred to such nails as were sold at fourpence, sixpence, &c., per hundred nails. The length of the nails of that day, that were so designated, was exactly the same with nails that are now known by those designations.

Not many years ago the first boat load of coal was sent from the Clarksville coal bank, Mercer Co., to Fire, and such was the little demand for the article there then, that it was sold below cost. Now the trade has assumed such magnitude that during the months of Cotober and Novem ber the shipments from the Mercer coal mines to Erie, exceeded 35,000 tons. The completion of the Erie and Pit sburgh Railroad will, it is a believed, greatly increase the trade.

Nobody will pretend that such is the case. And here we have a city of some hundred thousand people, the common residents of it, engaged in these processes every day. We are surrounded by a large multitude of people in jour own State who are doing the same thing in numerous towns and villages, and rural districts who are supplied mainly from this city. But we find a marked disposition to recoil from an adverse condition of the times, to fold the arms, and to mourn over "the situation" as a barren and a profitless waste.
