AN ABOLITION GLOWN.

Of all the Abolition simptoms which are at present inflicting their wretchedness upon a suffering people, the editor of the Pittsburgh Gazette is the most foolish and shameless. Yesterday, under the caption of "The Blacks Must Help Somebody," this scoundrelly individual writes a column in which he informs his readers that he has been all along leasing his estimates of the strength of the North and South "upon erroneous data," and then gives us the following strangely silly paragraph:

"The deduction of the butternuts from the Union side, and the addition of the negro element to the 'secesh' side, make the parties very nearly equal in strength. Now, this is not fair dealing. If the rebels will take part of our people, we must take part of theirs—they take the butternuts, we the blacks. The latter will fight if they get a chance; which is more than can be said of the former. The negroes are true to the Union and to 'Massa Linkum'; but the butternuts are true to nothing, as was shown in the case of Bull Run, when they had a martyr's crown upon their heads; by this time, had he not turned up the other end."

Did any one ever read such trifling and nonsensical stuff in relation to a matter so terribly serious as our civil war? This glib talk about "butternuts" and "blacks" and "Massa Linkum" wouldn't be tolerated on the most abject negro plantations of South Carolina. It is as desecration of his as it is of sense.

THE ARCHITECT OF RUIN.

Thurloe Weed on Horace Greeley.

"Old Thurloe" is after Greeley with a sharp attack. In a recent letter he makes the following points upon him. He says this architect of ruin has much to answer for, and then proceeds:

First, while Slidell, Toombs, Mason, Davis, etc., were maturing their scheme for rebellion, and the Gulf States, under their instructions, were stirring up their flaming fanatics, and yet, while the rebels were thus engaged, Mr. Greeley, instead of opposing their designs, here is the evidence from his own Tribune and in his own language:

"If the cotton States shall become satisfied that they can do better out of the Union than in it, we insist on the letting them go in peace. The right to secede is a revolutionary one, but it exists nevertheless. We must ever resist the right of any State to remain in the Union, and nullify or defy the laws thereof. We withdraw from the Union is quite another matter; whenever a considerable section of our Union shall deliberately resolve to withdraw, we shall resist all coercive measures designed to keep it in. We hope never to live in a republic where one section is planned to be the other by law."

"If the cotton States unitedly and earnestly wish to withdraw peacefully from the Union, we think that they should be allowed to do so. Any attempt to compel them by force to remain would be contrary to the principles enunciated in the immortal Declaration of Independence, and contrary to the fundamental ideas on which human liberty is based."

From the Tribune, Dec. 9, 1850. "If the cotton States shall become satisfied that they can do better out of the Union than in it, we insist on the letting them go in peace. The right to secede is a revolutionary one, but it exists nevertheless. We must ever resist the right of any State to remain in the Union, and nullify or defy the laws thereof. We withdraw from the Union is quite another matter; whenever a considerable section of our Union shall deliberately resolve to withdraw, we shall resist all coercive measures designed to keep it in. We hope never to live in a republic where one section is planned to be the other by law."

From the Tribune, Feb. 23, 1862. "Whenever it shall be clear that the great body of the Southern people are conclusively alienated from the Union, and anxious to escape from it, WE WILL DO OUR BEST TO FORWARD THEIR VIEWS."

Here then, in the outbreak of the rebellion, is the Tribune "doing its best to forward their views." Their views? Forward, with fatal celerity. We all see what consequences.

When the rebellion, thus encouraged, became a reality, the Tribune, as they say, science peculiarly its own, assumed a dictatorship over the government and the army. Our first calamity was occasioned by its insane cries of "On to Richmond!" After the inglorious defeat at Bull Run, Mr. Greeley became especially prominent, contending that he had done wrong, and promising to mind his own business. But this promise was soon forgotten, and the Tribune became as vigorous as ever, and ere long its inflated editor put forth an edict in the name of hundreds of thousands, addressed to the President of the United States, demanding a change of policy in his administration of the government.

And now we are called to witness, with amazement, a new phase of character—a change of policy, a change of mind. Mr. Greeley, with seeking, through Mr. Mercier, the Foreign Minister, foreign intervention! And, still more, the accusation goes so far as to implicate Mr. Greeley in a correspondence with Mr. Vallandigham! We venture to say that not ten of the Tribune's hundred thousand subscribers, or any outside authority, would have believed either of these statements. And why, then, their will whip ours.

"But here follows the exact truth with regard to our views on the whole subject, which Mr. Mercier, or Mr. Vallandigham, or any one else can have for the moderate price of six cents in Washington, or three if he purchases in New York. We believe that the war for the Union has now entered upon a phase which will probably result in a permanent Union, and that the Government remains in Republican hands this cannot be done. The Administration is responsible for the conduct of the war. It will be responsible for its termination—whether it ends under its authority. Whether that ending be honorable or disgraceful—whether it saves the Union or destroys it—the credit or the shame must rest with President Lincoln, his Associates in the Government, and the people who support them. Mr. Greeley can devise no plan by which this responsibility can be evaded. The Tribune cites the election and Message of Gov. Seymour, the Democratic victories in the West, and the efforts of 'opulent Democrats' elsewhere, as proof that they do not support the Administration in the conduct of the war; and it asks 'What says the Times?' We say simply that it is the duty of the Administration to shape its policy and so to prosecute the war, as to win the applause and support of the people, without distinction of party, and in spite of all attempts of party leaders to alienate them from doing so. Is this impossible? Then the Administration is responsible for the result. We hope to see the Tribune's duty, like that of every loyal citizen, to aid it in the endeavor.

Home on a Furlough.

Yesterday met Wm. C. Wall, Jr., (son of the well known artist) who is at home on a brief furlough from his company, Co. F, 102d Regt. N.Y. Inf., and who looks well and says camp life agrees well with his constitution. Private Wall received honorable mention in the report for gallant conduct at the battle of Fair Oaks, and is spoken of by the commanding officer of the regiment as "an active, prompt and trustworthy soldier." We hope his furlough will be a happy one, and that he will receive the promotion.

Had an opposition journal or member of Congress uttered these sentiments the Tribune would have demanded their removal to Fort Lafayette.

Mr. Greeley's conduct, though he does not deny it, has been communicated with the Foreign Minister and Mr. Vallandigham, suggesting "moderate" measures for the peace of the latter. In entering upon the question of mediation with a foreign Minister, he (Greeley) is guilty of a crime against the government. And in opening a correspondence with a Representative whom he is constantly denouncing as a traitor, he commits an offence I leave others to name and characterize.

And now I leave Mr. Greeley, the columns of his own Tribune being the exponent and witness, as first, of the withdrawal of the Union; and then, after a hundred thousand lives have been sacrificed and tens of millions of dollars of treasure squandered, demanding the intervention of the great powers of Europe in favor of the rebels upon the best terms of advantage; for the sake of humanity and commerce.

The debate in the U. S. Senate upon the bill emancipating and paying for the slaves in Missouri, on Saturday last, was very spirited, the Democratic Senators bearing themselves admirably throughout the contest. Mr. Turpie, the new Senator from Indiana, and Mr. Wall, from New Jersey, were particularly eloquent and effective. It is understood that the Republicans do not intend to let these speeches go unrefuted.

The drift of the speeches of Messrs. Turpie, Richardson and Wall was that the election had determined against the war policy of the Administration, and that the exercise in Europe of such powers as were arrogated by the President against the title of Emperor of China, and the American flag was a disgrace to the American name. Mr. Richardson implored the Republicans to stand by the Union, and to the election had determined against the war policy of the Administration, and that the exercise in Europe of such powers as were arrogated by the President against the title of Emperor of China, and the American flag was a disgrace to the American name.
