Truly, &c., NEGRO SOLDIERS.

Two absurdities were attempted in the scheme of making negro soldiers for active duty. As a Democrat I insist that if the negro is asked to volunteer or forced to take up arms and serve in the highest role of the citizen, that he is entitled and ought to receive every right and privilege of the free white. Has there been any preparation to do so, or is the whole scheme another evidence of the insincerity to the negro, and nasteadiness in all that relates to the economy of Government by the leaders of the Republican party.

As a Democrat I insist that if the negro and the general in chief have all the volcities and the general in chief have all the volcities and the general in chief have all the volcities and the general in chief have all the volcities and the general in chief have all the volcities and the general in chief have all the volcities and the general in chief have all the volcities and that this cabinet will be swept away. Of course mere unanimity or mere imsupplanting of the present rebel leaders, them to state this important fact, for it is portunity will not directly accomplish the object, but events rapidly approach a crisis where their operation will prove absolutely overwhelming and inevitably sweep along with it.

There is ground for the most serious alarm in view of the changes that must inevitably ensue shortly after the adjournment of Congress. The bad point for Mr. Lincoln lies in the fact that his obstinate resistance to the universal demand of the country has completely extinguished nilitary enthusiasm among the people.-A great part of the army goes out of service this spring, and he has rendered it impossible to raise a single new regiment o supply their place. The enforcement of a draft, in such a state of feeling, will prove scarcely less difficult than the volantary enlistment of soldiers. The fact that the draft ordered last summer had to be virtually abandoned, although the military ardor of the people had not then become deadened, naturally excites the graest misgivings as to the success of a new att unpt. There is a most painful recognition of the extinct military spirit of the people in the new conscription bill, whose salvation of the American Constitution.

The Society of Friends, have addressed the General Assembly, requesting a special enactment, "to relieve from fines and penalties all those who for conscience sake, and in obedience to what they sa credly believe the Divine will requires of the desilve to take we are also as well as the constitution.

The Society of Friends, have addressed the State authorities, as was done in the draft ordered last year, but create new machinery entirely independent of State co operation. This great innovation upon former usage is a short sighted experience. on former usage is a short sighted expedient which will enhance the disticulties seeks to avoid. It is bad policy for the government to make the confession that it has lost confidence in the people and bearing 8 per cent. interest. This offer the State governments to so alarming an the State governments to so alarming an extent that it dares no longer rely on the machinery which in sixteen months gave it upward of eleven hundred thousand men, No intelligible reason can be assigned for reement of a conscription. But if this repugnance is too powerful for State authority it is more likely to be inflamed than allayed by an innovation of which than allayed by an innovation of which the probable effect will be to lead the people to demand of their State governments protection against federal authority. The certainty that in the present state of feeling a draft will be unpopular is a strong to the state of reason why its enforcement should be shared by the State authorities, as a means of preventing a concentration of the whole odium upon the federal administration.-The certainty that no more men can be raised by enlistment, and the danger of

If nothing of this confired is to be feared in our contry, for the coming two years we are certain to again, see the reunion of our Confederation. The in creasing strength of the conservatism of the conservatism of the North, to which we have alluded, is indicative of a fealthy reaction among the people.
