HEADQUARTERS PUNESUTAWNEY RANGERS, J February 1863. Some old Roman-I can't now remember his name ; it is nt in the Army Regulations, the only book in the shanty ; perhaps it wasn't a Roman ; but it was a man with a roman nose-had for a motto, "divide and conquer." I believe he expressed it in Latin, however. The Tycoon of the War Department, whoever he may be, (some say its Halleck-some say it is'nt) has reversed the thing: . His motto seems has at least reached the climax of its and to be "divide and get conquered." I have an indefinite notion that if the Triumvitate, composed of His Excellency, the "Secre tary of my Lord," and the Grand Comgrammar''- may not be faultless -- we mander who did everything in the West never had the benefits of a collegiate ed till he took the field in person, were to put ucation as, some of the clerical scribblers their three classic heads together to devise about the Gazette have had, but, if we ways and means to extricate a wagon cannot compare with the Gazette in from a swamp, with the assistance of ten "grammar," we have greatly the advan- patient mules, it is ten to one that they.
