DAILY POST.

NEWS FROM EUROPE.

Arrival of the Arabia's Mails.

The mails by the steamer Arabia, which left Liverpool Feb. 21st, via Queenstown the 22nd, reached us yesterday. We make the following extracts from foreign files:

Emancipation Meeting at Liverpool.

On the evening of Feb. 20th, a large and enthusiastic meeting was held at Liverpool to address President Lincoln's emancipation policy, at which a number of speeches were delivered, and the following address to the President adopted:

An Address from the inhabitants of Liverpool, England, to the Hon. Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States:

SIR: Some 240 years ago a Dutch man-of-war entered the James river, in Virginia, and landed twenty negro slaves—the first ever imported into the continent of the New World.

In the year 1860, by continued importations and natural increase, that number had increased to four millions.

These two facts describe an evil which has been ever since pressing with accumulative weight upon the honor and prosperity of your country.

It is with unmingled feelings of pain and pleasure that we remember the existence of negro slavery in our own West India colonies—with pain, that England should ever have soiled her fame with the accursed institution—with self-gratulation, that her free spirit at length broke all the bonds of vested interests, and bade the oppressed go free.

But our slavery was only colonial; it did not pollute the life-blood of the people at large by actual contact. At home it was regarded as much in the light of an error of your statute books, the crimes of our nation. Accomplished but a small portion of England's vast possession, and did not affect the organization of labor anywhere else. The interests of a class were identified with its maintenance, but not those of the whole mercantile, but not those of the whole community. Even thus limited, Englishmen still blush to think it was ever permitted within the realm.

But the slavery of the United States is and has been a far greater calamity at home and abroad. The area of its occupation is immeasureably wider, the number of its victims far greater, while it has become so thoroughly identified with national life in the South, as to be always styled the "Domestic Institution." And if on these accounts the difficulty of its abolition be increased, so also is the danger of its maintenance.

The framers of the Constitution which was expressly designed "to secure the blessings of liberty," in an evil hour, recognized, from motives of expediency, an institution which they too readily believed would speedily die out. Could they have foreseen the time when, as far from perishing, it would have been endued with more vigorous life—when its growth and aggressiveness would seek out new territory for its extension, but would even carry it back in ignominious triumph to lands whence, by a feebler government, but with more enlightened policy, it had been expelled—how would their noble hearts have been dismayed at such sad degeneracy!

But so it has been. The peculiar adaptability of Southern soil to the growth of cotton, combined with mechanical ingenuity in simplifying the process of its manufacture, has not only given a larger value to the labor of the negro, but has created an inter-State slave trade, from which the Fathers of the Revolution would have turned away in disgust.

The presidential chair and all the higher offices of the State have, during a long succession of years, been occupied, with but few exceptions, by slave-owners. The influence of the government has been given to the extension and protection of slavery. And though it is true that each State in the Union has been alone responsible for the maintenance of slavery within its own limits, the nation has identified itself with the institution by permitting it within the District of Columbia and the Western territory, both alike common to all.

Worse than all, several of the slave States have broken out into open rebellion, for the avowed purpose of founding an empire to be indefinitely extended, and based upon the perpetual organization of slavery as the natural condition of the negro race.

To the national participation in the guilt of slavery one party in your country have always been opposed. With a holy and devoted enthusiasm they have tended the lamp of freedom in full faith that sooner or later it would scare away the darkness. Every fresh exaction of the slave power has only served to deepen their earnestness, augment their numbers, and increase their influence; and the nation has at length awakened to a sense of its responsibilities. Your own election to the chief magistracy was an evidence of its determination that involuntary servitude should, at all events, never exceed the limits it had then attained. And here we call to your mind your own words: "I have always hated slavery. I believe the government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free." No longer harassed by those sectional proclivities in the cabinet which formerly prevailed, and pursuing a strictly constitutional line, Congress has abolished slavery in the District of Columbia and throughout the territories of the United States.—It has recognized as sovereign States the republics of Hayti and Liberia, and it has conceded to England the long withheld right of search, thus rendering a treaty for the suppression of the slave trade something better than an empty mockery.

Constitutionally armed with powers derived from Congress, as Chief Magistrate and President of the United States, and commander-in-chief of the national forces, have forbidden the return of fugitive slaves seeking refuge within the lines of the federal army. In September last you issued a proclamation declaring that you would consecrate the new year to liberty by decreeing freedom to every slave within the limits of the rebellion; but at the same time tendering pecuniary aid for the immediate or gradual emancipation of the slaves of loyal States. Both these promises you have faithfully kept, and two slave States have since accepted your proposal. That the edict of freedom has not been universal in its operation is owing, we know, to the limit placed upon your power by that constitution which you have sworn faithfully to preserve, protect, and defend," and under which treason alone can justify you in compulsory emancipation. But we feel assured that by the inexorable logic of events, the abolition of slavery will speedily take place in every one of the excepted districts.

We offer no opinion on the policy of the civil war now raging in your country, but for the measures we have thus briefly sketched, which have denationalized slavery, and which are intended to destroy it as the avowed cause of the war itself, we now tender to you and to your cabinet our respectful sympathy. For these acts of humanity and justice we trust you will realize your own reverential desire, and receive "the considerate judgment of mankind and the gracious favor of Almighty God."

"The Number Seven."

The following curious compilation of occurrences in which the figure seven occurs will doubtless be read with interest:

In six days creation was perfected, and the seventh was set apart for rest. On the seventh day of the seventh month, a holy observance was ordained the children of Israel, who fasted 7 days and remained 7 days in tents; the seventh day was directed to be a Sabbath of rest for all things; at the end of seven times seven years commenced the grand jubilee; every seventh year the land lay fallow; every seventh year there was a general release from all debts, and all bondsmen were set free. From this law may have originated the custom of binding young men to 7 years apprenticeship, and of punishing incorrigible offenders by transportation for 7, twice 7, or three times 7 years; every 7 years the law was directed to be read to the people; Jacob served seven years for the possession of Rachel, and also another 7 years; Noah had 7 days warning of the flood, and was commanded to take the fowls of the air into the ark by sevens, and the clean beasts by sevens; the ark touched the ground in the seventh month, and in 7 days a dove was sent; and again in 7 days after. The 7 years of famine were foretold in Pharaoh's dreams by the 7 fat and the 7 lean beasts, and the 7 ears of full corn and the 7 ears of blasted corn. The young animals were to remain with the dam 7 days, and at the close of the seventh day taken by the old law man was commanded to forgive his offending brother 7 times; but the meekness of the last revealed religion extended his humiliation to seventy times 7. "If Cain shall be avenged 7 fold, truly Lamech seventy times 7." In the destruction of Jericho, 7 priests bore trumpets 7 days, and on the seventh day surrounded the wall 7 times, and after the seventh time the wall fell. Balaam prepared 7 bullocks and 7 rams for the sacrifice; Laban pursued Jacob 7 days journey; Job's friends sat with him 7 days and 7 nights, and offered 7 bullocks and 7 rams in atonement for their wickedness; David, in bringing up the ark, offered 7 bullocks and 7 rams; Elijah sent his servant 7 times to look for the cloud; Hezekiah, in cleaning the temple, offered 7 bullocks, 7 rams, and 7 he goats as a sin offering. The children of Israel, when Hezekiah took away the strange altars, kept the feast of unleavened bread 7 days; King Ahasuerus had 7 chamberlains, a 7 days feast, and sent for the queen on the seventh day; and on the seventh year of his reign she was taken to him. Queen Esther had 7 maids to attend her. Solomon was 7 years building the temple, at the dedication of which he feasted 7 days; in the tabernacle were 7 lamps; 7 days at the altar, and the priest's son was ordained up wear his father's garments 7 days the children of Israel ate unleavened bread 7 days; Abraham gave 7 ewe lambs to Abimelech as a memorial of his well; Joseph mourned seven days for Jacob. The rabbis say God employed the power of answering this number to perfect the greatness of Samuel, his name answering the value of the letters in the Hebrew word which signifies 7—whence Hannah, his mother, in her thanks, says, "that the barren had brought forth the seventh." In the Scriptures are enumerated 7 resurrections—the first that of Enoch, by Elias; the Shunnamite's son, by Elisha; the soldier who touched the bones of the prophet; the daughter of the ruler of the synagogue; the widow's son of Nain; Lazarus and our blessed Lord. Out of Mary Magdalene were cast seven devils. The apostles chose seven deacons. Enoch, who was translated, was the seventh after Adam and Jesus Christ the seventy seventh in a direct line. Our Saviour spoke 7 times from the cross, on which he remained 7 hours; he appeared 7 times; after 7 times 7 days sent the Holy Ghost. In the Lord's prayer are 7 petitions, expressed in 7 times 7 words, omitting those of a mere grammatical connection. Within this number are contained all the mysteries of the Apocalypse, revealed to the 7 churches of Asia; there appeared seven golden candlesticks, and Satan that was in the head of Him that was in the midst; 7 lamps being the 7 spirits of God. The book with 7 seals; 7 Kings, 7 thunders; 7 thousand men that were slain. The dragon with 7 heads, and the 7 angels bearing 7 vials of wrath. The vision of Daniel 7 weeks. The fiery furnace was made 7 times hotter for Shadrack, Meshach and Abednego; Nebuchadnezzar ate grass off the field seven years. The elders of Isreal were 70.—Having back to an alley, and are entirely isolated by streets and alleys on every side. Two of the 12 tribes have frame houses on them, five of which have 7 heads, by Jeroboam the prophets. They will be sold at 10 o'clock on favorable terms.

From The Crisis.

"Why do ye not understand my speech? Even because ye cannot hear my word.

"Ye are of your father, the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do: he was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth; because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar and the father of it."—St. John, viii, 42-44.

'Twas once on a time, as my story will show,
Old Beelzebub left his dark regions below;
His course lay direct for Washington, where
His business was special, his mind was intent.
Old Abe had assumed the executive chair.
He followed this to musing as onward he went:
"The scheme I have cherished for many a year,
I propose to develop in Old Abe's career;
I want for my purpose no more fitting tool,
In him are united the knave and the fool.
Whatever I whisper is Abraham's ear
Will have his approval I never need fear.
This every intention might be in disguise,
As prompted by me, the father of lies.
To gain the support of the honest and brave,
He must call for more troops the Union to save.
The Congress must understand its business, too,
And carry the Crittenden policy through.
If any should still understand him aright,
Let him be arrested at dead hour of night.
To terror thus seize on all who may dare
To oppose the edicts which he may declare;
Let all his small satellites, wherever known,
Supersede written law with stubborn backbone;
Let him prohibitions offer for lying and theft,
And wolves in sheep's clothing not subject to draft;
Be marked for assessment, and take their last mite,
Let these things be carried so far as to see
What men will submit to who claim to be free.
And if no resistance is offered at all,
Then throw off the mask and open the ball.
Directly we'll have such a hell upon earth
That the sad doom below will seem nothing worth.
Like devils incarnate each foe will engage
To glut his deep vengeance and vent his blind rage.
Let his Tribune, or whosoever would
To check the mad frenzy for such shares his blood.
Thus I shall accomplish my fiendish will,
And thus for a season I'll drink to my fill."

What further old Beelzebub had in his head
Transpired not, don't know, as the distance was speed.
But this we do know, since that journey was made
Abe Lincoln has strictly his master obeyed.

MEDICAL.

TO THE PUBLIC

ESPECIALLY

Parents and others

Dr. BRADBURY, graduate of Medical Institutions of Boston and Philadelphia, treats secret and delicate disorders, self-abuse and diseases of the sexual organs and functions commonest and most evident to youths of both sexes, and adults, single or married. Dr. BRADBURY, publishes the fact of his duty so, the ignorant and falsely modest are dreadfully shocked, and think it a great sin very immoral and for contamination and corruption among their wives, producing sons and daughters. Their family physician should be cautious to keep them in ignorance that they do the same as Dr. BRADBURY, (except publishing) lest a lucrative practice might be lost to them among stupid, falsely modest and presumptuous families, born and raised in ignorance, growing up as mushrooms and who compare society, intelligence, sense, &c., to opium. Spermatorrhœa or nocturnal emmissions, are completely cured in a very short space of time by his new remedies, which are peculiarly his own. They are compounds of some kind of medicine, having been used in delicacy of the Mercurial treatment, he has abandoned it and substituted the vegetable. Female diseases are treated with marked success. Having had many years experience in their treatment in hospitals of both the Old World and the New, he has studied to make health and happiness will again bloom in countenances and cheeks. None no longer with consumption and all of its kindred di
