INDIANA COPP. HEADS.

We have read a great deal about the treasonable copperheads of the Indiana Legislature, but in the Post will be found an address to their constituents, which we commend to the careful perusal of our readers. It contains their true estimate, and is a sound Democratic conservative teaching.

NOT APPRECIATED.

The gentleman who has been late making luminous the editorial columns of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, is throwing away his valuable time in remaining in such a one-horse place as this.

COPPERHEADS IN PRUSSIA.

Cotton for Cotton-Clads.

A Southern paper suggests that the cotton-clad boats should not be compressed. As the bale leaves the cotton-pressing substance then when compressed, as wood is compressed, as to be compressed, take the cotton as it is; the cotton will be proof against a Dahlgren 84-pounder.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.

The notices of the Gazette of this city is positively shocking. Yesterday, under the caption of "our next Governor," it came out in an article favorable to the nomination of Hon. Thomas M. Howe, of this county, but in the same connection it spoke of John Covode, of Westmoreland, as one whose whole life is "a certificate of purity, uprightness and loyalty."

COPPERHEADS' ONCE MORE.

To the Editor of the Chronicle: Sir: I am again compelled to obtrude myself upon the readers of the Post in reply to your article of Monday. I dissent from your idea that "fairness" would require me to sign my proper name to these articles. You are a public journalist and your columns, if adopted, or seemed to adopt, in habit of denigrating Democrats as "Copperheads"—poisonous reptiles.

THE CHARLOTTE EXPEDITION.
