rilliant Allegorical Representations and LIFE-LIKE TABLEAUX, executed by Maynerd, MASONIC HALL, Commencing MONDAY EVENING. April 6t h
The horrors of the battle field, fierce and deadly conflicts, the did of battle and the drash of war, are represented with life-like vividness. The thunder of the carnon and the din of the battle-field fail upon the ears of the audience. The fire and smoke of the advancing hotts, and their deeperate charges are seen. The tearful work of carnage and death is presented with a distinctness and vividness imooking reality. By the aid of extensive and intricate machinery, mechanical appliances, chemical effects and ingenious diorante accompaniments, never before introduced in this country, the audience can almost imagine themselves actual speciators of the sublime and stirring scenes represented. The surface of each view is so artistically arranged that the beholder may distinctly traverse with the eye an entire battle-field, or follow the movements of the frand Army from the outbreak of the rebellion to the present time.

Lach recene will be illustrated with a graphic describity elecure.
