The Murder of Lizzie German. The man who was arrested some days since as Dayton, Ohio, on suspicion of being the perpetrator of the terrible child murder in Harrisburg, has been visited in prison several times by different persons, and by one who is familiar with the circumstances of the German murder. He admits having been in Harrisburg about the time the murder was committed, and when asked why he decoyed the little girl away and killed her, he became confused and disconcerted, hung his head and was allent for some time, only replying, "I will say no more about that now, but when on the scaffold I will give you a full history of all my crimes." Since the last interview in which he thus talked, he persists in not seeing any one, and will being the perpetrator of the terrible child murder in Harrisburg, has been visited in prison several times by different persons, and by one who is familiar with the circumstances of the German murder. persists in not seeing any one, and will on the bill legalizing the payment of boun communicate nothing more on this sub-ject.
