

The Union as it was. The Constitution as it is.

See First and Third Pages for Commercial Directory and Advertisements.

TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 28.

POVERTY SHOULD BE PATIENT.

A correspondent of ours, a few days since, published a well written article upon the conscription act, in which, among other things, he complained of the three hundred dollar provision, which compels the man who can not raise that amount, to enter the service, while it exempts the man who can.

The Dispatch, of this city, in an unusually well tempered article, for a radical, undertakes to refute the points made by our correspondent, and closes his article with the following extraordinary paragraph. Alluding to the conscription law it says:

"There is no discrimination in it of the same character, precisely as that which prevails on our side, except that it is not confined to a class of men, but to a class of property."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

"The poor man, in default of money, is compelled to sell his property, and the proceeds are applied to the purchase of a substitute."

An Inside View of Rebeldom.

The Philadelphia Inquirer's army correspondent writes:

How the Rebel Government Remunbrates Its Citizens.

When questioned as to the resources of the Rebel Government to carry on the war the citizens declared that they could carry it on as long as the North could.

A small portion of Virginia had been desolated, it is true, by both armies, but far the greater part was in their power, and they asserted that they were planting immense crops of grain and vegetables in much the larger portion of the State.

where the hostile force of a Northern soldier has never trod, except as a prisoner of war. The Confederate Government, they say, takes good care of its citizens, paying them for damage done by the Confederate troops, whenever they occupy their lands in support of the war.

One gentleman assured me that he knew of a planter on the lower side of the Rappahannock whose land had been occupied by Jeff. Davis' troops, who had received for the land three thousand dollars from the Government for damages, while the owner paid three thousand dollars for the land when he originally purchased it.

When asked as to the ability of the Confederate Government to pay all these liabilities, they replied that the Government was in a better financial condition than that of the Government of the United States. The Confederate Government had immense quantities of cotton and tobacco on hand, which had been purchased at the rates current before the war, and the advance in the price of such articles since, they contended, caused the Government to have a capital of several hundred millions of dollars.

If this were not sufficient, they said, the people of the South were so earnest in the cause, that they would give all their property to the Confederate Government, which would be preferred to having it destroyed or confiscated by the United States.

What the South Wants and Will Take Nothing Less.

But the expectations of these gentlemen in bringing the North to terms are most extraordinary. Several of them declared most emphatically that they would never be satisfied to make peace until the North should pay for all the negroes that have been taken from them, and all the losses that the South has sustained by the occupation of its territory by Federal troops.

All ideas of reuniting with the North seems to be abandoned. Such an eventuality does not enter into their calculations, or at least the largest portion disdaintfully reject all ideas looking to a reconstruction of the Union.

Fables in the South.

One prisoner, an intelligent gentleman, a graduate of the University of Virginia, and a lawyer by profession, assured me that there were three parties in the South. One party—a considerable party, he thought his own language—is in favor of the old Union upon any terms.

Another party is in favor of the old Union, with a guaranty for what they consider their rights in regard to slavery. The third, and the most numerous party, is in favor of independence, and will agree to nothing less than absolute Southern independence.

Virginia Making Fortunes.

I was assured that many Virginians were not waiting to go to war, but were making money now than ever, in holding office under and furnishing supplies to the Confederate Government.

It is true, they are rolling in millions of Confederate money, but trade of all kinds is at a standstill, and the money is of no value for anything but the purchase of luxuries.

Continuation of the First Families.

All these gentlemen were called in honor, and were called in as they called it, which they said, was worn at their own private houses, or at meals in the city.

It is true, they are rolling in millions of Confederate money, but trade of all kinds is at a standstill, and the money is of no value for anything but the purchase of luxuries.

A Certain Cure for a Pison.

Two fatal accidents of loyal men have been reported in Arkansas, and a third is now forming.

New Word.

Mr. Jenkins remarked to his wife that he had a possession, and that he truly named them, "You are beautiful, dainty, youthful, and so amiable."

Americans in London.

The following is a list of Americans registered at Gun & Co.'s American News-rooms, 19, Crown Street, Strand, London.

"REBELLION IN BERKS."

Under this alarming caption the Gazette of this city copies some other resolutions, the following passed by a Democratic meeting in Berks county:

Captain Worden Endorses Administration.

It is stated that Captain Worden, commander of the old Monitor, had a long interview with the President and Secretary of the Navy, to whom he gave a full account of the late combat at Charleston, and fully endorsed the conduct of Admiral Dupont.

Production of Nitro.

Last week Captain T. J. Finley, Chief of the Nitre Bureau for the Department of East Tennessee, shipped from that district 27,000 pounds of saltpetre. He has increased the production of his district fifty fold in four or five months.

Strength of the Rebel Army.

Three weeks ago it is understood that information was in Washington from an undoubted source, that the strength of the enemy on the Rappahannock was sixty thousand effective men, the main portion being some ten miles in the rear of Fredericksburg.

Military Government of North Carolina.

The administration has never been fully satisfied with Governor Stanley, of North Carolina, and determined some time since to appoint his successor. D. R. Goodloe, a native of the state, and one of the emancipation commissioners in this district, will probably be appointed. Governor Stanley is now in Washington.

First Edition.

LATEST NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

Important from Mexico.

FRENCH DEFEAT AT PUEBLA.

The Enemy Plundering Missouri. MUTINY IN BRAGG'S ARMY. General Negley for Governor.

Secretary Seward Visits the Army.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Captain Worden is here, fresh from the press. He had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President. He is not at all discouraged respecting Charleston, believing that if we go to work in the right way we shall succeed in the second attempt.

Washington City, April 27.—The New Orleans papers, which were fresh from the press, had an interview yesterday with Secretary Welles and the President.