It is an exceedingly difficult matter to infuse political vitality into a defunct body; and the defeat which the ex-Govbalance of his life. One or two campaigns alted character and superior talents, or to very refined and ingenious dodges of demagoguery. Twelve years have elapsed since Gov. Johnson left the Gubernatorial chair of Pennsylvania; since then, no one in the State has been more industrious in explosion of that organization, he has labored in vain to reach further political consideration. Since the rebellion began there has not been, we think, a single public demonstration here that he has not only attended but figured at, either as a speaker, a committee man, or a Vice President. He has given the most bounding evidences of his loyalty, in every manner deficulties, in trine of the "irrepressible tion and its ght resistance to the law for possible, except going to the war, and yet in a canvass the other evening for President of the "Loyal League" he received but about a dozen votes. Public aspirants should appear but seldom and then—as Bollingbroke said,—like stars to was received here with some incredulity, though the citizens were ready, if necestation and should assume the virtue of modesty even if they have it not. Let them wait to be solicited, before they take the liberty of inflicting their platitudes upon a suffering people. If they are not solicited, they can, with certainty conclude that they are not the men for the occasion.

How refreshing it would be, at our next public meeting, to hear some sedate, sensible and genuine patriots talking wisdom instead of the hackneyed stuff we have to bear with, coming from the same intolerable, fussy, and in some cases half crazed individuals, who, for two long years, have been inflicting themselves upon the people. No matter how magnificent the opinion may be which these persons entertain of themselves, they may rest assured of their having become tedious and wearisome. We would suggest that their best course would be to retire, at least for a season. Well, to those who have been trying, through the still, some Dentists who have been trying, it is a proven two things, It, That their teeth have been extracted without pain and without any had result thereform. 2d. The skepticism of the other mark the day is not far off when all human Dentists will and must have one of my apparatus this is my firm belief. I need not say anything curther in behalf of my invention, only that Drs. J. KING and C. KING both eminent Dentists of this city have prochesed from me an apparatus and the right to use it.

J. KING and C. King both eminent Deposes of this city have purchased from me an apparatus and the right to use it.

It is with a deep feeling of gratitude that I take leave of my kind patrons, and tender to them my sincere thanks for many favors received, and t ust the benefit has been mutual, E. OUDRY. Pittsburgh, May 2J, 1863. PAIN, by the use of Dr. E. Oudry's Appa-J. F. HOFFMAN AND J. E. EDMUNDSON, DENTISTS,

Having purchased the office of Dr. F. Oudry will recommend themselves to his patrons and the public generally.
