

ANOTHER BATTLE ON MONDAY.

Continued Success of our Forces. Railroad Bridges Destroyed.

The following latest intelligence from Gen. Hooker's army is just received from Washington:

The battle of Sunday was renewed on Monday morning. The enemy appeared to have forces equal in numbers to our own, and his successive attacks were made with a desperate spirit.

The destruction of the railroad bridges over the Massaponax and Mataponi creeks, south of Fredericksburg, has certainly been accomplished, and the road to Richmond is thus cut off from the enemy.

Nothing trustworthy has been heard from that portion of General Stoneman's command sent to destroy the Virginia Central Railroad near Gordonsville.

While the great agricultural West and North-west are suffering terribly because of our civil war, other sections of the Union are making a very agreeable thing of it.

Here in Pennsylvania, and especially in this city, we would not know that we were raging upon so stupendous a scale as it is, or in any manner whatever, did we need the accounts of it.

We know not what calamities may be in store for us; the soil of Pennsylvania may yet be the theatre of bloody war; but so far, we have been exempt from danger—mere spectators at a distance, looking upon those dreadful shocks of contending legions, whose progress, impetuosity and endurance are to make a martial history for the people of the United States, exceeding in interest that of any other nation in the world.

While devastation and death are spreading in southern sections, causing poverty and privation in the west, and lamentations throughout the entire land, New England and secure, enjoying better health than when the rebellion began.

The destruction of the South must be necessary to her abolition leaders, especially as they are growing impatient because of her distress. The annual report of the Massachusetts Bank Commissioners lately published, is an interesting document. It contains some curious statements relative to the effect of the war on the productive industry of the State as well as its Capital.

The war has brought into activity many mechanical employments for which there is little occasion in time of peace—such as for example, the manufacture of arms and ordnance, camp and garrison equipage, saddlery and artillery harness, and military clothing and accoutrements. It has, also, greatly stimulated the manufacture of boots and shoes, and of woollen goods, while the substance of the army has furnished a constant and remunerative market for breadstuffs and provisions. There is hardly a branch of domestic industry which has not been actively employed.

The cotton manufacturer alone has been interrupted by the loss of the raw material, and has given less occupation to labor than usual; but the amount of the profits from his business has been considerable. Dividends have been made exceeding any former period, and reserves carried into the surplus funds, of corporations to insure and equalize dividends hereafter. Advantage has been taken of the stoppage of mills, to repair, so that whenever the manufacturer is once more abundant, the manufacturer of Massachusetts will be better prepared than ever before to reap all the advantages incident to the occasion.

THE SCIENCE OF WAR. There are, at present, a great many military statisticians scattered throughout the country, publishing their opinions relative to the manner in which our war should be conducted.

Among the whole of these learned and scientific people, we know of no one who is generally so luminous as our talented friend of the Evening Chronicle. There is thoughtfulness and simplicity in his criticisms upon the condition of the opposing forces, which must strike every intelligent reader with peculiar force. In yesterday evening's number, our friend's terse productions appeared; in nearly a column, he discussed with remarkable penetration the positions of the two armies near Fredericksburg, and summed up the whole matter in the following charming and truthful sentence:

"If all accounts be true, our commander appears to be cool, wary, fertile in expedients, and to have a full knowledge of the situation, and of the resources of his army. He is not, however, to be taken for granted, for he has not only a full knowledge of the situation, but he has also a full knowledge of the resources of his army."

THE SUPPRESSION OF THE NEWS. What does the government mean, says the New York Evening Post, by this persistent suppression of telegraph wires? The country is in an agony of expectation to know the progress of the tremendous combat which is going on in Virginia.

Why should it not be allowed to know? We have too much respect for the members of the Cabinet to suppose for a moment that it is given them the opportunity of it so much desired.

If there is no news let us know that; if reports from the army are unfavorable we should be informed of it; or if they are favorable, the sooner the glad tidings are spread the better.

General Berry. Major General H. G. Berry, who is reported to have been killed in a gallant charge of his division at a critical moment of last Sunday's battle, entered the services of the Fourth Maine volunteers. He was at the battle of Ball Bluff, General Kearney and served creditably under the command of General Sherman at the battle of Ball Run, Chantilly, &c. At the battle of Fredericksburg, Gen. Berry, a timely and gallant move drove back a rebel force and saved from ruin a part of the division with which he was acting. His commission as Major General dated from November 29th of last year. He was in command of the Second Division of the Third Army Corps, under Gen. Sickles, and with his division, as whose head he fell, saved the day, at a particular point, on one line, in the great battle of Sunday.

Why our Great Men are not in Public Life.

We never had greater men in science, in learning, in art; we never had greater lawyers, or greater mechanics, or greater engineers. Evidently, therefore, the problem to be solved is not why our large capacity have failed us, but why such men are so apt to turn aside from politics, and devote themselves to other pursuits.

It is because the new doctrines and new politics have had the effect to make an enlightened and experienced statesmanship a disqualification for the highest offices in the national government. Not the fitful but the most available candidate is sought for, one who will be contented with a position of honor, and not a power in himself. Thus all the ablest educated for the place are passed by; and what is worse, policy is inaugurated which makes it certain that no such candidates will be left.

Hence the present state of the oft-repeated question, by which it is thought, repeated complaints against official incompetency, indeed! You can find better men; where are they? You can find better men; where are they? You can find better men; where are they?

Eight hundred prisoners, including one entire regiment, of the rebels were brought to Washington this morning, and marched down Pennsylvania avenue to the old Capitol.

Their appearance was the subject of universal comment and remark. They were all well and comfortably clad, and not one looked as though he had not had enough to eat.

The officers, Major General Evans, of South Carolina, and a Brigadier-General (whose name we did not learn) were prominent in the number, both being very tall, fine looking men. They were in full uniform, and wore three gold stars on the collar-coat of the Major-General, and two on that of the Brigadier.

They were permitted to go about the streets accompanied by an unarmed corporal, and made several purchases in the stores on the avenue. Immense crowds thronged the streets wherever they appeared.

Major General Evans was the rebel general who had been captured at Leesburg during the "Ball's Bluff" battle.

There is a rumor current that General Stoneman has captured Gordonsville.

From the Philadelphia Dispatch. (Abolition.) Conscription Regulations to be Strictly Observed.

The Provost Marshal has nearly all been selected, and Colonel Fry, the Provost Marshal General, has prepared and issued the "regulations for the government of the Bureau of the Provost Marshal General," as approved by the President, who orders "that they be strictly observed."

There are one hundred and thirty-one separate regulations for the government of the Bureau of the Provost Marshal General, and full directions for filling up the thirty-nine printed forms of blank orders.

No Democrats to Fill the Offices. Each Provost Marshal has jurisdiction over a Congressional district. He may appoint two deputies, or more, if necessary, at salaries not more than $1 per month each; four special officers for each district, at $20 to $25 per month each, and one or more clerks, at not exceeding $2 per diem for the time actually employed, and special guides, at not exceeding $2 per diem for the time actually employed.

Those who neither wish to "fight or pay," but hope to avoid being drafted by obtaining a medical certificate from their family physician, will find themselves disappointed. All those who plead exemption on account of bodily infirmities or disease, and the regulations prescribe the manner in which they are to be examined.

Those who are to be examined, in the day time, in the presence of the Board of Examiners, and in a room well lighted and sufficiently large for the drafted man, and he must not exercise his limbs, which he must be required to do briefly.

Now many a man will look over his $3000 rather than be trotted about naked before four or five other men, who will sit in judgment on him as the famous Council of Ten of the Sons of Malta used to examine the candidates for initiation into that exclusive and inflexible society, and for which only old men (except call them "unconventional" ("lion" men), but the content is really between the citizen and the new comers, each party spurred on by a newspaper which is interested in the election of Tax Collector.

"How is it with you, Mr. Valain?" "Why, your honor, there is certain regulations, which are well understood; no actor playing a role. He is a lady; he shall play a role. He is a lady; he shall play a role. He is a lady; he shall play a role."

Now, Mr. Narcisse has vigorously embraced the cause of the "Volunteers," and he has kissed her twenty-five times.

LATEST NEWS BY TELEGRAPH. Serious Riot in Dayton, Ohio. TROOPS CALLED OUT. More of the Late Battles. LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

CINCINNATI, May 6.—There was a great deal of excitement at Dayton all day yesterday, over the arrest of Vallandigham, and the dark crew of five or six hundred men proceeded to the journal office and completely gutted the building, set fire to it and burned it to the ground.

The fire communicated to the adjoining building, and all the property from the south end of the Phillips House to the middle of the square was destroyed.

All of the telegraph lines to the city have been cut down, and the bridge on the North railroad reported destroyed.

At ten o'clock, a. m. troops arrived from Cincinnati and Columbus, and succeeded in putting down the rioters.

At half past eleven all was quiet. A large communication being interrupted, we have no advices as to the condition of affairs this morning.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—A Washington letter in the Press says, "No concerted effort on all hands that Gen. Hooker's strategy is the deepest yet displayed by any of our Generals, and it is even said that the object of it is to strike the rebels in the rear, and to cut off their communications with the sea."

At the late date we have last evening's news from Fredericksburg, still in our hands, and in company with our own artillery, played havoc in their ranks.
