And will positively prevent Yellow Fever, Bilious Fever, &c.

THEY CONTAIN
NO ALCOHOL OR BAD WHISKY
They will cure the above diseases in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred.
Induced by the extensive sale and universal popularity of Hoofland's German Bitters, (purely vegetable) hosts of ignorant quacks and unscrupulous adventurers, have opened upon the unfortunate community the flood gates of Nostrums in the shape of poor whisky, vilely compounded with injurious drugs, and christened Tonics, Stomachics and Bitters.

Beware of the innumerable array of alcoholic preparations in plethoric bottles, and big-bellied kegs, under the modest appellation of Bitters, which, instead of curing only aggravates diseases, and leave the disappointed sufferers in despair.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS!
Are not a new and untried article, but have stood the test of fifteen years trial by the American public; and their reputation and sale are not rivaled by any similar preparation.

The proprietors have thousands of Letters from the most eminent
Clergymen, Lawyers, Physicians and Citizens,
Testifying of their own personal knowledge, to the beneficial effects and medical virtues of these Bitters.

DO YOU WANT SOMETHING to STRENGTHEN YOU?
DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?
DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?
DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?
DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS?
DO YOU WANT ENERGY?
Do you want to sleep well?
Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?

If you do, use
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

PARTICULAR NOTICE.

There are many preparations sold under the name of Bitters, put up in quart bottles, compounded of the cheapest whisky or common rum, costing from 20 to 30 cents per gallon, the taste disguised by Anise or Coriander Seed.

The class of Bitters has caused and will continue to cause, as long as they can be sold, hundreds to die the death of the drunkard. By their use the system is kept continually under the influence of Alcoholic Stimulants of the worst kind, the desire for Liquor is created and kept up, and the result is a drunkard's grave, and the horrors attendant upon a drunkard's life and death.

For those who desire and will have a Liquor Bitters, we publish the following recipe. Get One Bottle Hoofland's German Bitters, and mix with Three Quarts of Good Brandy or Whisky, and the result will be a preparation that will far excel in medicinal virtues and true tonic, all and any of the numerous Liquor Bitters in the market, and will cost much less. You will have all the virtues of Hoofland's Bitters in connection with a good article of Liquor, at a much less price than those inferior preparations will cost you.

ATTENTION SOLDIERS,
AND THE FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS

We call the attention of all having relations or friends in the army to the fact that HOOFLAND'S German Bitters will cure nine tenths of the diseases incident to camp life. In the list, published daily in the newspapers, on the arrival of the sick, it will be noticed that a very large proportion are suffering from debility. Every case of that kind can be readily cured by Hoofland's German Bitters. Diseases resulting from disorders of the digestive organs are speedily removed. We have no hesitation in stating that, if these Bitters were freely used among our soldiers hundreds of lives might be saved, that otherwise will be lost.

We call particular attention to the following remarkable and well authenticated cure of one of the nation's heroes, whose life, to use his own language, "has been saved by the Bitters:"

PHILADELPHIA, August 23d, 1862.

Messrs. Jones & Evans.—Well, gentlemen, your Hoofland's German Bitters has saved my life. There is no mistake in this. It is vouched for by numbers of my comrades, some of whose names are appended, and who were fully cognizant of all the circumstances of my case. I am, and have been for the last four years, a member of Sherman's celebrated battery, under the immediate command of Capt. R. B. Ayres. Through the exposure attendant upon my arduous duties, I was attacked in November last with inflammation of the lungs, and was for seventy two days in the hospital. This was followed by great debility, heightened by an attack of dysentery. I was then removed from the White House and sent to this city on board the steamer "State of Maine," from which I landed on the 28th of June. Since that time I have been about as low as any one could be and still retain a spark of vitality. For a week or more I was scarcely able to swallow anything, and if I did force a morsel down, it was immediately thrown up again.

I could not even keep a glass of water on my stomach. Life could not last under these circumstances; and, accordingly the physicians who had been working so faithfully, though unsuccessfully, to recuperate from the grasp of the dread Archer, frankly told me they could do no more for me, such disposition of my limited funds as I might see fit to make. An acquaintance who visited me at the hospital, Mr. Frederick Stenbron, of 68th below Arch Street, advised me as a forlorn hope, to try your Bitters and kindly procured a bottle. From that time I commenced taking them and the shadow of death receded, and I am now, thank God for it, getting better. Though I have taken but two bottles, I have gained 10 pounds, and feel sanguine of being permitted to rejoin my wife and daughter, from whom I have heard nothing for eighteen months; for, gentleman I am a loyal Virginian, from the vicinity of Front Royal. To your invaluable Bitters I owe the glorious privilege of again clasping to my bosom those who are dearest to me in life.

Very truly, yours, ISAAC MALONE.

We fully concur in the truth of the above statement, as we had despaired of seeing our comrade, Mr. Malone, restored to health.

General Meagher.

Review of his Military Career.

The retirement of this officer from the army will be received with regret by all who are acquainted with his sterling worth as a gentleman, and his bravery, devotion and ability as a soldier. Through his personal influence and exertions the Irish Brigade of New York was raised immediately after the first Bull Run battle. It then consisted of four regiments of infantry and two batteries of artillery, and numbered more than five thousand men, of the best fighting material the country has produced. At the head of this force, General Meagher took the field in person, and at its head has remained, leading his heroic followers through all the bloody battles of Eastern Virginia and Maryland, leaving portions of his men on every field, and in every engagement earning distinguished honors, not less for himself than his command. The brigade was peculiarly an Irish organization. All its staff officers as well as those of the field and line, and also, nearly every private in the ranks, were Irishmen. There was a national pride excited in the raising of the brigade, which has been fostered in the perpetuation of its existence. It took the field purely to fight as American soldiers for the preservation of the American government; but the desire was manifested to exhibit the devotion of adopted citizens of Irish birth to the country that had given them an asylum.

Why the Brigade was not United to Any Other

With this object in view its commander and officers desired to retain its national character, and have not therefore, been willing to consolidate it with other brigades, or to incorporate with it regiments, or parts of regiments not Irish in their character. In the severe battles through which it has passed, its ranks have been rapidly thinning, until at the present time, the total effective force is less than four hundred men—not half of one regiment. Its batteries were detached long ago, when by general orders, brigades of infantry were not allowed artillery.

Gen. Meagher's Plea to the Government.

From time to time General Meagher has pleaded for permission to withdraw this fragment of a brigade from the field and take it to New York, and there recruit its ranks. But this permission has been steadily withheld, and no opportunity has been given for recruiting, until at last the organization has become so small as to be but a burlesque on a brigade. General Meagher had too much self-respect and honor to continue to receive the honors and emoluments of a brigade commander while commanding merely a battalion adapted to the command of a major. It is for this reason solely that he tendered his resignation. The fragments of the regiments composing the brigade are about to be consolidated into one regiment.

His Farewell to his Troops.

Last evening Gen. Meagher assembled his little command and took his leave of them. The occasion was one of much interest, and will certainly long be remembered by every member of the organization, all of whom, without a single exception, are devotedly attached to their old commander. The brigade was formed in a hollow square, the General and his staff in the centre, with Brigadier Gen. Caldwell and other visitors. The band of the Fourteenth Connecticut was also present, and furnished some most appropriate and music for the occasion.

After the troops had been formed and the band had performed an appropriate piece of music, the General addressed the command as follows:—

His Parting Address.

TO MY OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS, MY COUNTRYMEN AND COMRADES IN ARMS.—A positive conviction of what I owed to your reputation, to the honor of our race, and to my conscience, compelled me a few days ago to tender to the President of the United States my resignation of this command. I shall not recapitulate the reasons which induced and justified me in doing. It would be superfluous. There is not a man in this command who is not fully aware of the reasons which compelled me to resign, and there is not a man who does not thoroughly appreciate and approve it. Suffice it to say that the Irish Brigade no longer existing, I felt that it would be perpetuating a great deception were I to retain the authority and rank of a Brigadier General nominally commanding the same. I therefore conscientiously, though most reluctantly, resigned my command. That resignation has been accepted, and as your general I now bid you an affectionate farewell. I cannot do so, however, without leaving on record the assurance of the happiness, the gratification and pride with which I revert to the first days of the Irish Brigade, when it struggled in its infancy and was sustained alone by its native strength and instincts, and retrace from the field, where it first displayed its brilliant gallantry, all the efforts, all the hardships, all the privations, all the sacrifices which have made its history—brief though it be—sacred and ineffaceable. Sharing with the humblest soldier freely and heartily all the hardships and dangers of the battle field—never having ordered an advance that I did not take the lead myself—I thank God that I have been spared to do justice to those whose heroism deserves from me a grateful commemoration, and that I have been preserved to bring comfort to those who have lost fathers, husbands and brothers in the soldiers who have fallen for a noble government under the green flag. My life has been a varied one, and I have passed through many distracting scenes. But never has the river that flowed beside my cradle, never have the mountains that overlook the paths of my childhood, never have the old walls that claimed the curiosity and research of maturer days, been effaced from my memory. As at first—as in nature—the beautiful and glorious pictures is indelible. Not less vivid, not less uneffaceable, will be the recollection of my companionship with the Irish Brigade in the service of the United States. The graves of many hundreds of brave and devoted soldiers, who went to death with all the radiance and enthusiasm of the noblest chivalry, are so many guarantees and pledges that, as long as there remains one officer or soldier of the Irish Brigade, so long shall there be found for him, for his family and his little ones, if any there be, a devoted friend in

THOMAS FRANCIS MEAGHER.

How the Address was Received.

At the conclusion of the remarks nine enthusiastic cheers were given for the General, after which the commissioned officers came forward and shook hands with him, bidding him an affectionate and tearful farewell. The General then passed along the lines and, shook each and every soldier by the hand, saying a "goodbye" and a "God bless you" to each one separately. Both officers and men were affected to tears, and the separation seemed a truly painful one to all parties concerned.

His Successor.

Colonel Kelly, of the Eighty-sixth regiment, then assumed command of the brigade, as the senior officer, and dismissed the column. At the conclusion of the leave taking the officers met at the General's headquarters, where refreshments were served and a couple of hours were spent in rehearsing the incidents that had transpired in the history of the brigade.—Gen. Meagher will leave for New York on Friday. He has tendered his services to the government in any military capacity in which they may be desired.

Life in Richmond Described by Rebel Pens.

The Richmond Whig on the 14th instant, in an article exhibiting the prevalence of vice in that city, reproduces the following from a correspondent of the Atlanta (Ga.,) Commonwealth:

"Richmond is, I suppose, at this time, one of the most undesirable places in the Confederacy. The old inhabitants of the place, most of them, are either away or keep themselves within doors. The offscourings of creation are assembled here for the vilest purposes. It is really dangerous for one to walk the streets, in some parts of the city, after night. Burglaries, theft and robberies are of nightly occurrences and not unfrequently the papers of the morning record murders that were committed the very night previous.

"Here, too, the miserable, thieving gamblers can be counted by the hundreds. Main street, as you may know, is the most fashionable street of the city, and in this street, between Seventh and Fourteenth streets, are the most valuable houses in the city. Whilst the lower stories of these buildings are devoted to lawful purposes, the upper are the dens of iniquity and shame. The gambling tables are spread and the cards are dealt out nightly, and thousand are won and lost; and frequently, to make the unsuspecting stake his last dollar, he is drugged with poisonous whiskey. To cap the climax of their wickedness, it is not unfrequently the case that common women of the town have apartments hard by the gambler's table. How degenerate! How many men in an evil hour have been fleeced of these practical swindlers? How many families, in an hour or a day, have been reduced to penury and wretchedness? Truly, war is a great calamity. For the time it seems that principle yields to passion, honesty to avarice, vice to virtue. Reason herself, amid the mighty tempest, loses her empire. It may be asked, why is all this allowed? Why do not the authorities prevent it? This I can't answer. Some think they connive at it; some think they are guilty of the grossest criminal negligence, and others think that such are merely evils of the times that cannot well be put down. The wickedness of this city, and especially its contaminating influences, are certainly greatly to be deplored.

Sad Conclusion of a Bridal Party.

One of those painful episodes in life which remind us of the uncertainty of all things human, was witnessed yesterday at Elmira, on the return of the Twenty-third Regiment from the field. The people of Elmira made all the preparation requisite to give them a warm welcome, and many came from abroad who had friends in the regiment to join the festivities. Among those who had come was a bride to meet her intended husband, Captain Clark, of the Twenty-third. The feeling of the party knowing that the train was momentarily expected, may well be imagined. The train came, but instead of bringing the young Captain full of life and with buoyant hope, it brought his corpse. He had been killed but a few hours before near Williamsport by coming in contact with a bridge.

The bride was overwhelmed with grief and was borne away by sorrowing friends. The party returned to Courtland, bearing the remains of Captain Clark—a mourning troupe indeed.—Rochester Union.

Printer's Litany.

From want of gold, from wives that scold, from maidens sold, by sharpers 'sold' preserve us!

From foppish sneers, mock anotioners, and from a woman's tears—deliver us!

From stinging fleas, from coal-black eyes, and babies cries—deliver us!

From seedy coats, protested notes and leaky boots—protect us!

From creaking doors, a wife that snores, confounded bores, and dry goods stores—protect us!

From shabby hats, torn cravats, and flying brickbats—save us!

How they Get Used to It.

In New Haven, the horses attached to the steam fire engines have learned their business as well as to take delight in it, and seem really to enjoy the dash and noise as much as the men. They stand among the falling sparks of fire, while the machines are playing, as unconcerned as if they were in their stalls. And why not? The horse is among the most intelligent of animals; he is quick to observe and learn, and with him habit soon becomes second nature. And why should he not be as easily and quickly accustomed to anything else that is new and strange, so as to regard it without fear? One question raised by some persons to the introduction of dummy engines on our city railways is, that self-moving engines would scare the the horses in the streets. Supposing it to be so, a very little use and familiarity of the horse with the cars would make him quite indifferent to them, while the public would gain greatly in the cheapened means of transportation.

The Tycoon's Gift to President Lincoln.

We announced some time since that the Tycoon of Japan had sent a gift to the President of the United States, consisting of a coat of mail. The following is a description of it:

An umbrella-like helmet, of fabricated sheets of steel and copper, shields the head, while a vandyke of interwoven silk cord and lacquerated net-work falls gracefully upon the shoulders. The outside of the helmet is profusely ornamented with chrisanthemums of gold, in beautiful open work, upon black lacquer, with now and then a trimming of purest silver. The visor is of copper, lacquered in scarlet and brown. The armlets are of the finest copper chain work. The breastplate is of copper intersected with parallel strips of lacquer, and woven together with delicate wire and golden cord. A sort of kilt accompanies the armor, and, with lacquered leggings grotesquely formed, completes the set. The President has not yet found it necessary to put on this defensive armor.—Wash. Rep.

Discovery of a Comet.

The Albany Argus of Tuesday publishes the following:

At half past 11 o'clock on Saturday night, 9th instant, Mr. Thomas Simons discovered a nebulous object in the constellation Draco, which, on being examined with the large equatorial, proved to be a comet. The light was considerably condensed at the center, being seen under illumination.

As it is approaching the North pole of the heavens, and being in a favorable position for observations, it will probably very soon become a very conspicuous object.

PITTSBURGH OIL TRADE.

TUESDAY, May 26th, 1863.

The market for some days past has been inactive, buyers and sellers being apart in their views. The stock in first hands is still reported as being limited, whilst the rates asked in this market are as high as those demanded in New York, leaving no margin for exporting.

The Oil Exchange received the following dispatch:

OIL CITY, May 25th.

Crude—The market was firm and buoyant, prices having further advanced. The current rates up the creek were $16@4 50; at the mouth, $5@5 25.

A new well, near the Caldwell Farm, had been struck. The exact capacity had not been ascertained, but report says 600 barrels and upwards.

LATER—The new well is now flowing muddy oil.

Exports: To New York—Crude, 188 bbls: Refined, 297 bbls. To Philadelphia—Crude, 1,220 bbls: Refined, 500 bbls; Benzole, 78 bbls. To Baltimore—Crude, 223 bbls, and Refined, 200 bbls.

Imports: Per A. V. Railroad—Crude, 892 bbls; Refined, 400 bbls. Per Allegheny river—Crude, 1,311 bbls.

The above exhibits a large falling off in the receipts.

Crude—The market is just in that condition at present that correct quotations cannot be obtained. The nominal rates were: In bulk, 20@21c; in bbls, packages included, 27@28c. These rates will not admit of shipments. The sales were altogether for local purposes.

Refined—The transactions were altogether in small lots for local purposes. The asking rates were: Bonded, 40@45c: Free Oil, 49@55c.

Benzole—Dull and neglected. Prices nominal.

PITTSBURGH PRODUCE MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY POST, }
Tuesday, May 26th, 1863. }

Remarks—The weather continues warm, excessively so. The crops are beginning to suffer for want of rain, a few hours of which would be of great value. Our rivers are daily declining and at the present rate all but the very lightest draught steamers will have to cease running. Money matters are about as unsettled as ever. There is, however, very little doing in the way of Exchange. On the streets money is plenty and can be had on easy terms for negotiable paper. The excitement that commenced on Saturday in regard to the capture of Vicksburg by Gen. Grant continues up to the present time. There is scarcely anything else talked of. Fifth street in the vicinity of the newspaper offices being crowded all day and the largest portion of the night. The details of this grand and brilliant achievement will be looked for with great interest. Our readers will be kept fully advised as fast as it comes by mail and otherwise. Cheese—We have no change to notice in this article. The new crop is beginning to arrive pretty freely. Bacon steady with a good demand for home use. Government contracts for the present being all filled. Most of our large dealers have done an unusually large business. Flour dull: no demand beyond the local. The stock in first hands is sufficient for all ordinary purposes. At present flour seems to be a drag in the Eastern and Western markets, there being no export demand.

Flour—The dullness we have mentioned for some time past continues; the dead lock between buyers and sellers seems to be a fixed fact. The extreme light receipts favor holders altogether. Prices going on. Sales 75 bbls Extra, 35 75@6 125 do Extra Family, $6 50@6 75; 50 do choice do, a fancy brand, $7; wagon flour was unchanged, with moderate sales at previous quotations.

Hay—The demand has fallen off. Sales at the above prices, ranging at from $9@15.

Butter—Small sales at 12½@14c.

Cheese—The receipts now are increasing: Sales 50 boxes new W. R. 10c. Old is held higher.

Lard—We quote nominally at 10@10½c for choice.

Apples are becoming scarce, the season being fast advanced. A prime article would sell readily.

Dried Fruit—The market was steady, but unchanged. Sales Peaches, $3@3 25; Apples, $1 37@1 50.

Brooms—Sales 65 doz choice at $3@3 37 ½ doz.

Grain—Market dull and unchanged. We omit quotations.

Bacon—Steady with a fair demand. Sales of 10,000 lbs Shoulders, 9¾@9¾c; 5,000 lbs Sides, 12¾@13c, 5,000 lbs Plain Hams 13¾@13¾c, 2,500 lbs Plain S C Hams, 9¾@10c: canvassed S C is held at 11c.

Whisky—Market steady: sales 25 bbls City Rectified at 42@44c.

Groceries continue in good demand for home use.

Sugar—75 hhds Orleans, 12¼@12¾c; 10 do Cuba, 11¾@11¾c; 10 hhds Porto Rico, 12@12¾c; 12 bbls coffee A, 13¼c; 10 do B, 14c; 8 do crushed, 15½c.

Molasses—Sales 18 bbls Orleans at 55@56c.

Syrups—Sales of 10 bbls XXX at 62c.

Coffee—Sales 3t sacks Rio at 29¾@30¾c.

Salt—Sales 180 bbls No. 1 at $1 75@1 80.

PROVISION MARKET.

Cincinnati.

There is daily something doing in Provisions on orders from abroad for regular markets, but not in such a way as to impart spirit or character to the trade. There were recorded to-day sales of 100,000 lbs of bulk shoulders at 3½c, and 100,000 lbs sides at 5c. There were also sales of city rendered lard at 9½c. This figure is the minimum for prime quality. Cable is being generally asked. Country of the best quality is usually held at 9½c.

The Philosophic Burner.

HAYDEN'S NEW DOUBLE-ACTING Philosophic Burner for Carbon Oil is now ready. It possesses many advantages over the Common Burners.

1. It makes a large or small light with perfect combustion.
2. It will burn any quantity of oil with safety.
3. It can be used with a long or short chimney.
4. It can be used as a taper night-lamp.
5. It can always be made to burn accurately.
6. It is more easily wicked than any other burner.
7. It can be trimmed and lighted without removing the cone.
8. It throws all the white light above the cone.
9. The chimney can be removed or inserted without touching the glass.

These burners are also common No. 2 size, and can be put on any lamp now in use. Every person using Carbon Oil should have a Philosophic No. 82 FOURTH street, Pittsburgh.
