As a general thing our citizens acted with the greatest thing our citizens acted with the greatest forbearance towards them, but we were sorry to see a couple of men engaged in bandying abusive epithets with them. A ruly brave man will never insult a fallen too. We heard of a couple of other men, however, who showed their love for rebeldom in a different manner, and in a way that will be likely to cause them some trouble. They were shouting for Jeff. Davis (so the story goes) and were telling the rebs that they were all right, and that there would be a revolution in the North, and other matters of an equally interesting character, when they were suddenly and unceremoniously hoisted into the cars with the prisoners, and sent with them to for Delaware. One, it is said, is from the Fifth Ward, and the other from Temperanceeville. Another case was a bold sen of Erin, who was annoying the guard, talking secesh, saying that a man had forbearance towards them, but we were heard. A man, addressing one of the prisoners said, "I pity your poor father." "Well, said Secesh "I'll tell you what it is, my friend, if my father was on your side, I would shoot him quicker than I would you or any one also." would you or any one else. I have been in this war ever since it broke out, and I am going to remain in it till it closes, or am killed." Such is the spirit of six Such is the spirit of vindicativeness that animates them.
