Printer Injured. Mr. J. P. Hornish, a printer of this city, was found on Sunday morning in an insensible condition on the bank of Puckety creek, near Johnson station, a short distance above Hulton. He had gone up the Allegheny Veller Reilrord on Setur. the Allegheny Valley Railroad on Saturday evening and getting off the train at Hulton, he proceeded up the track on foot, and in crossing a bridge he fell through, a distance of twenty three feet, upon a pile of stone, breaking two ribs, and otherwise seriously injuring himself His condition is somewhat critical, bu strong hopes are entertained of his ultimate recovery.

Fourth of July.

Fourth of July is approaching, and we could like to see it celebrated in a good would like to see it celebrated in a good old fashioned way, somewhat similar to the manner of celebrations of the kind when we were erjoying the halcyon days of boyhood. If ever there was an appropriate time for the celebration it is now. -Let there be service in the churches; let the military and firemen turn ou'. let pic nics be found in every beautiful grove that shade the streams of Western Pennsylvania, and especially the suburbs of Pitts-burgh. Already has one of our fire com panies received and accepted an invitation from a neighboring town to be with them on that day. We do not know what the Lord has in store for us, but we do know that the farmers and gardeners are reaping a plentiful harvest of money by fostering and keeping up the fears of the people. Marketing of all kinds are exorbitant, and three dollars will scarcely buy what one dollar does in ordinary ceasons. We would furnish us with short statements of the creps in their neighbourhood. Useful Invention.

Mr. William P. Patton, a machinist in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, has recently invented an improved carpet tack. It consists of a flat oval bit of iron, perhaps half an inch long and about half as broad. From the centre and about half as broad. From the centre of this little plate, which is about the thickness of the heads of ordinary carpet tacks, a prong or spur is punched, which tapers to a point, and which being bent to a right angle with the plate, forms the body of the tack. The invention is a very simple one. Its introduction to public use we know will be appreciated by house-keepers, as the carpet tacks now in use are keepers, as the carpet tacks now in use are mostly a worthless article. The inventor has secured a patent for his article, and so soon as the necessary machinery for the manufacture of them can be constructed they will be introduced to the public.
