DAILY POST. An Important Matter Explain-ed.--General Order No. 2.

Martial Law.

When men clamor for martial law, do they really realize what it is they are asking for, and the cousequences that would ensue from its enforcement? Martial law at would is where the military supersedes the civil is where the military supersedes the civil power in every department, and it is only in the most extreme cases that it should be brought into requisition. Every charge against a man, no matter how serious, or how trivial in its nature, would subject him to a military inquisition. The private citi-zen has no more rights under martial law than the soldier. At present, however, there are no fears that the machinery of municipal government will be disturbed. Capt. Wright informs us that unless some-thing further transpires, more than is thing further transpires, more than is known at present, martial law will not be
