The New Rebel Campaign.

General Hooker will not bear investigation, and hence the North American's desire to postpone a discussion of them. Was this the temper of the radicals last year, when the Administration, trembling for the safety of the capital, implored McCiellan to come to its assistance? When the Administration in the same of the safety of the capital, implored McCiellan to come to its assistance? When the responsibility of the safety of the capital, implored McCiellan to come to its assistance? When the word of the safety of the capital, implored McCiellan to come to its assistance? At the present moment, and for the past month, while Lee's army threatens the national capital, what do we behold? A delegation of Philadelphia politicians, the editor of the North American being one of them, visiting Washington, not to make suggestions regarding the necessity of defending our State from rebel raids, but to induce the President of the United States to attend a partisan celebration in Philadelphia, on the Fourth of July next. And they succeeded. President Lincoln has promised to attend the coming meet ing of the Loyal Leaguers of Philadelphia,. and attack one or the other of these forces before they got over their surprise, or conid get themselves set for battle. But if so, Hooker's equally rapid march from Falmouth to Bull Run, prevented this; and by this march, the latter officer planted himself in a position where he can cooperate with all the troops in front cf Washington, and can receive reinforce.
