and the most extensive, too, which the President has yet given the nation, is that in which he and his Cabinet and General Halleck participated last Tues. of a serenade, when these function.

The militia are coming up in their rear: some of the prisoners, we captured, say it the militia are to militia are coming up in their rear: was not their intention to break through the Army of the Potomac, but through the green Militia; but they heard the little Corporal, (meaning little Mac.) was at their head, and they would have to get the green Militia; but they heard the little command.

"An officer who came from Lebanon yesterday reports Morgan's force at Green river bridge at three to four thousand, and their head, and they would have to get out the best way they could. We are con." Mulea and horses by thousands, and men by hundreds crowd the highways ate to themselves the credit of the battle of Gettysburg and the fall of Vicksburg. Think of that without laughing who ever can. Stanton and Halleck the most unfortunate persons—so far as failures are troduced "old Brains" to the serenaders, and that functionary immediately inform there was but little accomplished. Since Grant has been relieved of Halleck's im- the most accomplished men of his time, a with the army where Hooker left it, and Music meeting, uses this significant awaited a plan of campaign from Halleck, language: Lee would probably be by this time battering at the gates of our National Capital. But he started after Gen. Lee, gave him battle, and whipped him before Halleck and Stanton had ascertained where Gen. Meade had gone. And now, these magnificent humbugs introduce themselves to a crowd of musicians in Washington, and modestly appropriate to themselves the fresh and blooming honors belonging to true greatness. Could pomposity and meanness go farther than this? Stanton was not satisfied without proposing three cheers for Hallack, but they were not given, except by a few dependents of the War department. The President, after alluding to our stitution, to preserve the rights of free victories made some allusiens to the speech, the liberty of the press, personal freedom from arbitrary arrest and imprismusic.

The Secretary of State, now that the Capital is free from any rebel attempt upon it, announced his desire to be buried among its ruice. This call to be inforced as "martial law." in such places, is merely the exercise of arbitrary power, without any warrant of law what ever. I trust that the distinction will yet be fully drawn between those places where capital is free from any rebel attempt upon it, announced his desire to be buried among its ruins. This sudden burst of valor upon the part of the sage of Auburn is entirely too refreshing to be allowed to pass without proper notice. While there was the remotest danger of the Capital falling into rebel hands, our Secretary of State was as mute and modest as a grass widow at a christening; but now, that Lee's army is beaten, and he himself anxious to get off as far from Washington as possible, he sallies out and informs us that he has no wish to survive its downfall. He spreads it on so thick that we can not resist the temptation of copying his concluding touches. Its heroism and pa'hos were doubtless suggested by a recent reading of the spectod of Robert Emmett:

"If I fall here let no kinsman or friend remova when the constitution, which and of the constitution," the government my dust to a more he spinishe grave. Lettical and my dust to a more he spinishe grave. Lettical and mention when the constitution, and the survive interest was a class of the constitution of the spectfully invited to a more he spinishe grave. Lettical mention." The objects of your meeting, as set forth

AWAITING AN ATTACK, Wagon Trains.

THE FIGHT IN MARYLAND. A Battle Hourly Expected Lee's Communication with Richmond Cut Off.

&c., &c., &c., Boonsboro, July 9.—The Times' special

The rebels were drawn up in line of battle, three and a half miles from here, this morning, on the road to Hagerstown. From there they extend towards the Pomac, in the vicinity of Bakersville. They are throwing up rifle pits near Fairplay, and will probably await an attack. Our forces are so placed that a collision may occur any hour.

New York, July 10.—A special to the Times, dated Middleburg, Md., July 9th, says: The number of wagons destroyed by our cavalry is over 500. Gen. Butord de stroyed 200 on Monday, and Dahlgren 170 on the same day. On Saturday and Sun on the same day. On Saturday and Sunday there were destroyed between 200 and 300.
