 European Agency.

 About a week ago we published an ac-count of the great trial of steam fire en-gities in London. We now lay before our regard to prizes, and a short description of the machines. The London Times, of July 10th, says:
 The committee in the committee appointed to decide on the merits of the various steam fire en-gines which competed last week in the grounds of the Crystal palace, have made their award of prizes, exactly in the man-ner we expressed our anticipations that they would be given. To the patent steam fire engines by Messrs. Merryweather & Sons, Long acre, (large size), was awarded the first prize of 2500.
