The Rights and Duties -OF THE-AMERICAN CITIZEN.

An Address Delivered Before the Manchester Democratic Club, July 16, 1863.

BY JOHN M. CORNWELL

Gentlemen of the Democratic Club THE grave issues thrust upon the

A rebellion of gigantic magnitude inaugurated by the misguided people of a portion of the people of the United States, have drenched her fields in fraternal blood, and the demons of hate and discord have usurped the places once sacred to the spirits of peace and unity, while our progress to greatuess has been rudely arre-ted, and the slum bering volcanoes of social and political anarchy threaten us with their pestifer-

To the true American patriot, the dicture is intensely humiliating .-Schooled, as he has been to believe that the foundations of our political structure were so deeply and firmly laid, that they would successfully defy every effort of faction to uproof them; echooled, also, to believe that our political system was especially inaugurated under the auspices of a benignant Providence to illustrate and prove to the people of every creed, clime, and tongue, the dapacity of man, to act wisely and discreetly, when made the immediate and responsible custodian of his most escred, social and political rights; to see these high hopes frustrated; to see our once prosperous and powerful recontemplation, and the patriotic heart turns with dismay from a prospect so fraught with gloom. Nevertheless it is our duty to know the worst so that our actions in this ori of party, and the denunciation of our opponents constitute the staple.

I deem this no proper time to fan

the flame of party zeal and fanaticism; on the contrary, it is the duty of the patriot at this hour to allay, as far as possible, the bitterness of party; and, especially does it behoove us, as Democrats, to cultivate a broad and liberal spirit that shall place us in eminent contrest with those whose littleness developes itself in the invention and applica tion of such phrases as Copperheads, because, forsooth, we have the audacity to differ from them in political opinion :and this we may do, without abaring one jot of our fealty to the teachings of the ocrat?
