Nominations for State Officers.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 6. The Democratic State Convention was large, enthusiastic and harmonious. Fifteen hundred delegates were present.

The following persons were elected as delegates to the National Convention: Josiah G. Abbott, of Boston; Oliver Stearns, substitute; Erasmus Beach, of Springfield; D. M. C. of Lowell; Isaac Davis, of Worcester; George W. Hensley, substitute; James D. Thompson, of Danvers; and Charles Hebbner, substitute.
