Would the votes for Andrew G. Curtin—a man whom the Pittsburgh Gazette, the able and influential organ of the Abelition party in Western Pennsylvania, had pronounced a thief? Will you vote for a man that is charged by his own friends with swinding the soldier? Can you vote for a man who boldly proclaims his intention to bring home blue blouses and brass buttons enough from the army to cary the election? No, you cannot. Well, the vote for Judge Woodward, a man who has never been called a thief and swindler by his friends—a man who in all that goes to make a man, is immeasurably above Andy Curtia, and who will take care that the rights of the people are not endangered whilst he guides the helm of State.

Col. Gibson, of Washington, was the next speaker. His announcement was received with the most tremendous cheers.

As a public "stump orator" it is not to much to say that Col. Gibson has not a superior in the country. He has a voice of each in the country. He has a voice of such great compass that he can make himself heard for whole squares, and by a judicious mingling of wit, humor and anecdote into his remarks he can hold his hearers for hours at a time. No mere report of his speech on Saturday night would do him justice—the speech itself, if printed for word as delivered by him, would not have half the weight with the reader that it had with the hearer. it had with the hearer. To appeciate fully this Democratic champion he must be
