Forthers Monroe, Sept. 26—A deserter was conducted into our lines with surprising tales of the doings of the rebels in Richmond. Rumors flew about the city in all directions, that the rebel Capital was being evacuated, and that the which rebel army was deserting Virginia and going South. This gained strength from the statements of a party of our men which had escaped from Belle Isle and came into Williamsburg, Va., to Gen. Underson the Peninsula. These are sub-dartially the seme feats as the desert.
