MANY DEMOCRATS of the Army of the Potomac. of the Army of the Potomac. An Incident of the War. Not long after the battle of Gettysburg, some three thousand soldiers had assembled within the confines of a mammoth chapel tent for the purpose of evening worship. A half hour had elapsed since the opening of the discourse when a terrible clap of thunder burst upon the ears of the startled congregation, causing even the boldest to shudder at its power and volume of sound. The noise of the huge rain drops as they pattered upon the pa villion, was as the "long rolls" beaten by a handred drums. In vain did the mina hundred drums. In vain did the minister endeavor to make his own voice heard; nor was he permitted to do so, until the "heavens were bottled up," and the rain had ceased.

A party of three young men standing near the entrance of the tent, having been particularly uneasy during the service, were observed to leave their comrades, one of them remarking as they stepped outside, "Let's go to our tent, I'm airaid of neither God nor devil."
