Now that the excitement attendant upon a political campaign has well nigh passed, matters and things will soon settle down into their accustomed ordinary hannels. The glorious privilege of the lective franchise has been exercised by the freemen of the State, and the verdict of the people has been rendered. Whether right or wrong, that verdict should be willingly acquiesced in. Frauds their may have been-but whether of such magnitude as to change the general result re nains to be seen. Every case in which the purity and sanctity of the ballot box has been accomplished or even attempted, should be taken before the proper legal tribunels, and the offending parties sum townships. marily dealth with. This done, and all law abiding citizens should cheerfully abide the result. These who have worked hard and faithfully for the candidates of their party and their choice, some of whom staked their money on the result, will naturally feel sore, and be inclined to find excuses for their defeat; but we would advise all such not to "cry over spilled milk," but good naturedly "own up" that it was the want of votes that defeated them, and to hope for better luck the next time But what will local reporters do? They are deservedly the most popular machines in use, and have a hold upon the confidence of a deserving public which, we opine, cannot be readily shaken. Such a list of awards as the above, for one month, must

For far, however, it has proved a faiture, the stocks in the Kast being too inge for a successful operation of that kind, besides the latest news from abroad does not favor exporters.
