Having had a man employed for the last six years compounding the above excellent remedies for my own practice, and having used them with uncommon success in all that time. I feel it a duty to set them before the public, as my experience leads mo to think they are as near apecifics as any remedies well can be for the following diseases, namely scrotlia, Coitre, Syphilis, and all diseases that arise from an impure state of the blood. One trial will convince any person of their fitness for those diseases.

"While walking along the banks of the Portuguesa one may see these huge lizards collected in groups of half a dozen or more, basking in the sunshine near the water, with their jaws wide open till their ghastly palates are filled with files or other creatures alighting within them. Wa

We his teeth and plunged fearlessly into the tried in vain shooting them with guns; the reptiles were so wary that the moment we took aim they rushed into the water. Being at a loss bow to procure a subject for my pencil, I sought the advice of an old man, an angler by profession, who lived in one of the huts near the river.

He agreed to let me have his canoe, with his son to paddle it, and the requisite number of harpoons, providing I could obtain the assistance of an Indian boy from the neighborhood, who was a capital marksman with a bow and arrow.

He placed his two edged dagger between his teeth and plunged fearlessly into the monster rose and made quickly towards him. The ferryman crossed himself devoutly, and muttered the boly invocation of Jesus, Norday Jose! for the toll of the improdent traveler. In the meantime the water towards the approaching crocodilo. Aware of the impossibility of striking his adversary a mortal blow unless he should reach the arm-pit, he awaited the monnent

The stupid goats perceiving this jumped from their secure places on shore upon the seeming island, which they however, never reached, for the crocodile, tossing up his head at the right instant, received them into his open jaws and swallowed them without difficulty.

"If by accident a human being falls a prey to this tyrant of the river, the repulle is then called csbado, which appellation implies everything that is bold, ferocious and treacherous in an animal of the species, as from that time they not only waylay persons, but follow them in the canoes, in hopes of again securing this dainty morsel, There are, however, men bold enough to meet the enemy face to face in his own element. The man who makes up his mind to this encounter is well aware that this must be a conflict to the death for one of the antagonists.

"The ferryman related to us a feat of gallantry worthy of a better cause performed here by a Llanero with one of these monsters. The man was on his way adversary a mortal blow unless he should reach the arm-pit, he awaited the moment until the reptile should attack him to throw his saddle at him. This being acthrow his saddle at him. This being accomplished so successfully that the crocodile, doubtless imagining it to be some sort of good eating, jumped partly out of the water to catch it. Instantly the Llanero plunged his dagger up to the very hill into the fatal spot. A hoarse grunt and a tremendous splash showed that the blow was mortal, for the ferceions monetar sank was mortal, for the ferocious monster sank beneath the waves to rise no more. "Proud of this achievment and scorn ing the tardy assistance of the ferryman, who offered to pick him up in his cannoe, he waved his bloody dagger in the air, exclaiming, as he did so, 'Is there no other about here?' and then turning, he swam leisurely back to take his horse across. The canoero who related this adventure then added, 'So delighted was I on that occasion that I killed my fattest hen to treat the man to a good saucocho, for the caiman had devoured all my goa

our harpoon. We tried in vain to start him; he stuck to the muddy bottom, whence neither palls nor curses could move him. We hoped that in time he would come to the surface to breathe, and then we might strike him with a harpoon, then we might strike him with a harpoon.

"After waiting for him two hours, we gave him up, along with the arrow head sticking in his own. I made various other attempts to secure a specimen, but with no better result, as the river was yet too high to sound for them.

While in this place I was told several incidents in relation to the cunning and instinct of these stricts.
