From Rev. J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend patent a edicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects: 1 yet know of no sufficient reasons why a man may not testify the benefit he be leves himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contibute to the benefit of others. I do this more readily in regard to Hoofland's derman Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were consein an account of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they ed to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Eag, for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued cability. The use of these bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident reliefs and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before thank God and my friend lor directing mental to the use of them.

PRILADELPHIA, June 23, 1862.

ATTENTION SOLDIERS,

ATTENTION SOLDIERS, AND THE FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS We call the attention of all naving relations of friends in the army to the fact that 'HOOF-LAND'S German Bitters' will care nine tenths of the diseases induced by exposures and privations incident to camp life. In the lists, published almost daily in the newspapers, on the arrival of the sick, it will be noticed that a very large proportion are suffering from debility. Every case of that kind can be readily cured by Hoofand's German Ritters, We have no heritation in stating that, if these Bitters were freely used among our soldiers annoted of lives might be saved, that otherwise would be lost

The proprietors are daily receiving thankful letters from sufferers in the army and hospitals, who have been resolved to health by the use of these Bitters went to the by the ur friends.

Thus it was that Austria showed her gratitude to John Sobieski for the help he brought her in the hour of her need. Rurope, to be sure, was convulsed with grief. Philanthropy dissolved into tears, Campbell, in his "Pleasures of Hope," in most moving poetry, depicted the misera biggree of speech, that "Freedom shrieked when Koseiusko fell," and all schoolboys of oraterical aspirations have never ceased when to recate the same. But nothing was done. Philanthropy soon wiped its eyes and went off in search of the next available griev.

At the close of the seventeenth century Austria was about the most dangerous and troublesome neighbor Poland had, and they watched each other with jeslous attention. Suddenly there burst upon Europe a terrible disaster. The Turks, with a great army, had crossed the frontier, and were spreading devastation as they marched. The Turks were then the most warlke people in the world. Their Asiatic savagery, their batred of Christianitys, their deadly carnestness of their propagandism of the Moslem creed, all filled Europe with Moslem creed, all filled Europe with Christian name, and to set the Cresent above the Cross in every cathedral in Europe. They marched straight on Vienna and encompassed it all around. There are made no hope but from Poland. What

Why help Austria? whispered policy; let her fall, it is one enemy the less. Thus did not think the King of Poland—John Sobieski. He was a man of heroic mould. He saw Europe menaced, its religion and its civilization imperilled. He saw the tide of barbarism, that had been again and again banked out, rising once more and threatening to engulph all in ruin. He saw this, and, forgetting Poland's ancient grudge, John Sobieski bade his Poles gird on their swords and march to the relief of their ancient foe. (Applause.)
