New York, December 8.—A special to the Tribune, dated Washington 7th, says:
The most important and interesting portions of the message are those which deal with the subject of slavery and restoring the Union of the States that have been in rebellion. What the President says regarding the former topic, he considers, as held in his preclamation, the liberation of cll.

A few years will only elapse when every accessable spot on all the thousand hills which environ Pittaburgh will be covered with grape vines, yelding a rich return for the money and labor invested.

Desiring to glean some information as to the rise, progress and present magnitude of grape growing and wine manufacturing in this vicinity, we called upon Mr. Adolph Welty, an intelligent gentleman, who very kindly gave us the following facts in relation to the vineyards on "Spring Hill."

Mr. Welty has two and a half acres of bearing vines, and one half an acre of young vines. He has been engaged in the cultivation of the grape for eight years.
