in soothing tones until she was relieved.

There was a strong, earnest love between these sisters, both of superior intellect, and, thanks to Louis, with a fine educa tion too, and the bond of protection and dependence strengthened it.

"Lizzie," said Kate, coming one after-noon to her sister's couch, and taking her gently into her arms, "did you know that Louis was building a new house?"

"No. Where?"

"On the site of the old school-house the prettiest spot near Woodville. And—and, sister, they say he is building it to bring his wife home to."

A shudder ran through Lizzie's frame years' standing cured by DR. KEYSER'S PECTORAL SYRUP:

PITTERURGE, Jan. 11, 1860.

Dr. KEYSER: My wife has been afflicted with a ban cough and difficulty of breathing for five years, which for several years back had gradually increa ed in violence. The complaint has been hereditary, and she had been troated by several physic ans without any rolled. In this state of her case, I procured some of your Pectoral Couga Syrup. I bought, the first time, a fifty cont bottle, which relieved her very much: I then called and got a dollar bottle, which cured her entirely, and she has now no trace of the former disease, except weakness. I would also state that I used the medicine myself to a cold and cough: The medicine cured me by taking one dose. I express my entire satisfaction with the medicine, and you are at liberty to publica this if you desire to doso,

WM. WILSON,

PITTABURER, Nov. 18, 1868.

Dr. KEYBER: I have been, more or less; in my life, affected with the severest of colds and horseness. At times my throat would become as closed as 30 prevent my speaking above a whisper, and 1.5 taking a few dozes of the above fyring it would fellove me entirely.

In recommending this medicine, I must unheatstingly say that is the best remedy I over tound, purporing to cure the above, nor should any family be without this remedy for diseases so prevalent.

Yours, most respectfully, EDWARD J. JONES, Cashier Citizens Deposit Bank,

COL. PRATT AND DR. KEYSER'S PECTOBAL SYRUP.

PECTORAL SYRUP.

Dr. Kryshe—Dear Sir. Excuse the delay in my schnowledging the excellence of your Pectoral Cough Syrup Scorer. I take great Pleasure in saying that it is all you say it is. It knocked the noise out of my cough and the worst one I was ever afflicted with. I have not used more than one-half of the bettle and I can and do wish that all who are afflicted would give it as fair a trial as I have done, and they will be proud to say. It is no quack medicine. I would not suffer another such an attack for any consideration, or at any cost. I sam confident I can broathe more freely than I over did. I shall always acknowledge a debt of gratitude for inventing so excellent a remedy. You are at liberty to use my name in this regard, as you think proper.

Where can it be, dear Mother, That Mary's beauty lies? More silken are my tresses. And brighter are my eyes. let children throng around her, And strangers praise her grace: There's not a creature in the village, know when day is breaking She seeks the forest stream erchance its shaded waters Some ancient charm retain, And those who bathe at suprise

'Il hie me there to morrow, To try the waters too, And wait until she cometh, And see what she will do. Young Ella reached the forest While yet the stars were bright; But scarcely had she didden,

When Mary came in sight. She lightly crossed the streamlet And paused upon a spot There rocks and twining branches Had formed a quiet grot : Inconscious of observers, She knelt in meekness there,

While yet the light was dim, Forth came the softened Ella, Nor tried the streamlet's art; She thought not of her features, but of her erring heart.

many, which Louis Gardiner delighted to perform, he had most active assistance from Kate and Lizzie Arnold, Harold Hastings' step-children. He had commenced his intimacy with them by offering to take charge of their education, and many, many pleasant days did the lame girl owe to him. He taught her to draw, and sent to Philadelphia for the materials, with which she passed many hours. Confined entirely to her couch or chair, unless she drove out, the time had passed very heavily before Louis came; her mother and sister were always busy, and her father could only take care of her in the evening, after his day's work. Harold, in these five years, had become a rich man; his house was larger, and from the eastern cities he had brought many comforts for ning, after his day's work. Harold, in these five years, had become a rich man; his house was larger, and from the eastern cities he had brought many comforts for his western home. If Louis wanted food or medicine for a sick parishioner, it was Kate who brought them to him. Did he want clothes for children left motherless and destitue, then it was Lizzie whose nimble fingers cut and made them. She was very lovely, this lame girl; her rich golden hair fell in heavy curls round a fair, delicate face whose large blue eyes seemed looking into heaven, so full were they of pure and holy light. She was quite a contrast to her sister, whose tall, full figure, large black eyes, and rich dark hair were the admiration of all the rustic beaux. Kate, in full health and beauty, treated her sister like a delicate child; taking her small, slight form into her arms, when the paroxysms of pain which Lizzie suffered made her restiess, and walking her gently up and down, speaking in soothing tones until the was relieved.
