PITTSBURGE, Jan. 11, 1850.

DE. KEYSER: My wife has been afflicted with a bar tough and difficulty of breathing for five years, which for several years back had gradually increa of in violence. The complaint has been hereditary, and she had been treated by sevoral physicians without any relief. In this state of her case, I procured some of your Pectoral Coura Sylup. I bought, the first time, a fifty cent bottle, which reneved her very much; I than called and got a dollar bottle, which cured her entirely, and she has now no trace of the former disease, except weakness. I would also state that I used the medicine myself to a cold and cough. The medicine oured me by taking one dose. I express my entire satisfaction with the medicine, and you are at liberty to publica this if you desire to doso.

Dr. Kryser: I have been, more or less, in my life, affected with the severest of colds and horseness. At times my throat would become se closed at 'prevent my speaking above a whisper, and by taking a few doses of the above byrup it would clieve me entirely.

In recommonding this medicine, I must unherstatingly say that is the best remedy I ever found, purporting to core the above, nor should any family be without this remedy for diseases so p. svalent.

COL. PRATT AND DR. KEYSER'S PECTORAL SYRUP. PECTOBAL SYRUP.

Dr. Keyere—Dear Sir. Excuse the delay my acknowledging the excellence of your Pectoral tough Syrup sooner. I take great pleasure in saying that it is all you say it is. It knocked the noise out of suycough and the worst one I was ever afflicted with. I have not used more than one-half of the bettle, and I can and do wish that all who are afflicted would give it as fair a trial say I have done, and they will be proud to say. "It is no quack medicine." I would not suffer another such an attack for any consideration, or at any cost. I am confident I can breathe more freely than I ever did. I shall always acknowledge a debt of gratitude for inventing so excellent a remedy. You are at liberty to use my name in this regard, as you think proper.

DESTRUCTION OF THE BASTILE.

The Manin the Iron Mask The 14th of July will ever be a memorable day in French history, as having wit. nessed, in 1789, the demolition by the Paper plenipotentiary of the Duke of Mantua for ris populace, of the grim old fortress identified with the despotism and cruelty of the falling monarchy. It was a typical incident, representing, as it were, the end of a wicked system, but unfortunately not inaugurating the beginning of the milder and better. Much heroism was shown by the multitude in their attack upon the Bastile, for the defenders did not weally have indisposed other sovereigns. Bastile, for the defenders did not really submit, and had a great advantage behind their lofty walls. But their triumph was sadly stained by the massacre of the Gov.

ernor, Delaunay, and many of his corps.

"It was now," says Lamartine, "that the mysteries of this State prison were unveiled—its bolts broken—its iron doors barst open—its dangeons and subterranean cells penetrated—irom the gates of the towers to their very deepost foundations and their summits. The iron rings and the chains, rusting in their strong masonry, were pointed out, from which the victory tims were never released, except to be tortured, to be executed, or to die. On those walls they read the names of prison. ers, the dates of their confinement, their griefs and their prayers-miserable men, who had left behind only those poor me-morials in their dungeons to attest their given but a maddening sense of confine prolonged existence and their innocence! ment to the solitary prisoner. DAILY POST. of 1698. St. Mars was made Governor of the Bastile, and thither Matthiolic was conveyed, dying within its gloomy walls on the 19th of November, 1703. He had then been twenty four years in this rigor-ous confinement, and had reached the

ous continement, and had reached the age of sixty three.

Throughout this long captivity, Louis never showed him any elemency. The extraord nary precautions against his discovery, and the one which appears to have been afterwards resorted to, of obliging him to wear a mask during his journeys, or when he saw any one, are not wonderfoll when we reflect upon the violent breach i, when we reflect upon the violent breach of the law of nations which had been committed by his imprisonment. Matthioli concluding a treaty with the King of France; and tor that very sovereign to kidnap him, and confine him in a dungeon, is with other sovereigns; nay, would pro-bably have indisposed other sovereigns finement of Matthioli is decidedly one of the dendliest stains that blot the character of Louis XIV. The prison of Matthioli, in the fortress of St. Marguerite, is now for the first time, engraven from an original sketch. It is one of a series of five, built in a row on the scarp of the rocky cliff. The walls are fourteen feet thick; there are three rows of strong iron gratings placed equi-distant within the arched window of Matthioli's room, a large apartment with vaulted roof, and no feature to break its monotony, except a small fireplace beside the window, and a few shelves above it. The Bay of Cannes, and the heautiful range of the Esterel monotains, may be seen from the window; a lovely view, that must have

His bedding, and all the furniture of the room, were also burned to cinders, then reduced to powder, and thrown into the drains; and all articles of metal melted into an indistinguishable mass. By this means it was hoped that oblivion might surely follow one of the grossest acts cruelty in the dark record of history.
