MINORITY REPRESENTATIVES. Several of our Abolition contemporaries think it outrageous that there are districts, represented in Congress by Democrats, which, last fall, gave large Abolition majorities. The New York Times is especially outraged by this inequality it says :

"There are at least forty men sitting in that House who no more represent the present sentiments of their constituents, on the real issues of the day, than if they had been elected ten years ago. They are every day voting there in absolute contradiction of the sentiments of a majority of their constituents as declared at the last elections. To call them Representatives is a mockery. They are mis-representatives out and out. They per-fectly well understood it, and yet it does ot affect their public conduct a particle. Were there but ten more of them they would have the power to array, and without the least hesitation would array, the so called popular branch dead against the administration, although the people them selves have just pronounced for the administration by majorities almost unpre cedented in our political history." This is plausible enough, but the Times ter to hit upon a plan, which will keep at the Masonic Hall Auction House, No. 65 Fifth pace with the ever changing tide of public stree: a large consignment of opinion. The popular branch of Con. TOYS, gress should, always, as nearly as possible, reflect public opinion, and so should the President of the United States; and if 'forty members' of the former are misrepresenting the opinions and convictions of their constituents, what business has GIFTS &c. Mr. Lincoln in the White House, by the same mode of reasoning. At the Presidential election of 1800, he was in a minority of nearly one million of votes, and, yet there was no hesitation manfested by him in entering upon the duties of his office. So, it appears from this, that the Aboliionists are not by any means averse to of the popular suffrage. Nor is the Pres-jorities. In his late message to Congress he suggests a plan for bringing the seceded States back into the Union, which is the heaviest blow at the existence of sovto them. THE WORLD, to which the New York Weekly Arous has been united, has to-day five times the aggregate circulation of any Democratic or conservative newspaper, ltaddresses weekly alone more than 100,000 subscribers and constant purshasers, and reaches at least half a million roaders.
