

DAILY POST.

PITTSBURGH: MONDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1863.

TO ADVERTISERS. Advertisements must be handed in before 10 o'clock, p. m., to insure insertion.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION. The Democratic Convention to nominate a municipal ticket for the approaching election, will meet this forenoon in one of the Court Rooms, at 11 o'clock.

ITEMS. There is a rumor that our army is to winter at or near Warrenton.

The Charleston Courier has been temporarily suspended.

The Governor of South Carolina urges the abolition of substitutes in the army.

The Dublin fund for a Prince Consort memorial amounts to £5,000.

Over 20 new Postoffice Saving Banks have just been established in England.

It is stated that 5,000 persons in Norfolk took the oath of allegiance in two days.

The Catholics are about to erect in Springfield, Illinois, a convent to cost $60,000.

Hon. J. M. BAKER was returned to the Confederate States Senate by the Legislature of Florida for six years.

During nine months of the present year 30,615 bales of cotton have been exported from Wilmington, N. C.

We see an announcement of a marriage of a Mr. GREENBACK. Now look out for an issue of "legal tenders."

Counterfeit $5 notes on the Union Bank of Philadelphia are said to be in circulation.

It is said that Russia has ordered a conscription of twenty men on every 10,000 inhabitants for the whole empire.

JONES writes to friend and closes by saying, "I am glad to be able to say that my wife is recovering slowly."

At a spiritual circle the other day, a gentleman requested the medium to ask what amusement was most popular in the spiritual world. The reply was, "Reading our own obituary notices."

Gen. GRANT celebrated the 4th of July by taking Vicksburg, and appropriately observed Thanksgiving by giving Bragg a thrashing. What is to be the program for Christmas and New Year's?

MONEY has offered $5,000 reward for the capture of a late member of his command, who is now acting as guide to the Federal forces stationed about Vienna, Va.

It is reported that letters have been received from General GRANT, which state that it is against his wishes and consent that his name is so conspicuously brought forward in some of the New York journals for the Presidency.

A very strong effort is being made upon the President for the removal of Secretary WELLES; a large number of influential ship owners are in the movement, but it is difficult to say whether or not it will be successful.

There is no truth in the report that Mexican officers have come to the United States with a commission for purchasing Spanish "French" commodes, and have succeeded in the object of their mission.

The passport system is to be extended to Philadelphia and Boston. It does not require a passport from each individual, but the Marshal examines each vessel and requires all arms etc., to be given up, when a general pass is given to the captain.

On Wednesday last, a snow storm took place at Louisville, Ky., accompanied with heavy thunder and vivid flashes of lightning. The Louisville Journal says the shock of an earthquake was felt, shaking some of the houses to their foundations.

A few mornings since we were relating to our family the fact of a friend having found upon his doorstep, a fine little male infant, when one of the olive branches remarked: "Pa, dear, it'll be his step son, won't it?" We thought it would, decidedly.

A Veterinary Surgeon died lately in the Jersey City Almshouse, from the bite of a sick horse he was attending at the time. He exhibited all the marked symptoms of hydrophobia, and his physicians were unanimously of the opinion that his was clearly a case of that disease.

Geo. FLETCHER, a sub-Lieutenant in the First Regiment of French Volunteers of the Guard and son of the eminent French Gen. FLETCHER, has been convicted of murdering his mistress in Paris and sentenced to military degradation, to hard labor for twenty years, and to be under police supervision for life.

The Memphis Journal says that the printers of that city commenced at 11 o'clock on Monday last week to organize a military company and before two in the afternoon they had swelled to over a hundred. This is what we call quick work, and don't think it was ever met in any section of the country. The company was instigated by (Gen. Vetch, and we expect to see the printers in this, as they are in everything else, the foremost in the ranks.

A Washington letter to the New York Tribune says that an order was issued on Monday relieving Gen. SCHEFFELD from the command of the Department of the Missouri, and appointing Gen. ROSSBACH to the command of a new department, comprising all the territory included within the Department of the Missouri except Kansas, Colorado, and the Indian Territory, which are erected into a separate department under command of Gen. CROMBIE. These changes, it is said, will be entirely satisfactory to the "Radicals" in Missouri and in Kansas.

The Administration majority in the House of Representatives voted, to a man, against submitting the question of the constitutionality of the Reconstruction Act to the adjudication of the Supreme Court of the United States. Either these gentlemen expect a decision adverse to the constitutionality or they do not. If they do not, it was wanted only to remove strong feeling by the public mind against the bill by producing an indorsement of it from the highest judicial authority. If they do anticipate a decision adverse to the bill, their vote proclaims an utter indifference to the Constitution, and a willingness to see it "laid on the shelf as a piece of waste parchment.

CONGRESS ADJOURNED.

Congress adjourned until after the holidays, having, after three weeks deliberation, succeeded in passing a little bill appropriating $20,000,000 for bounties and pay for soldiers volunteering before the 6th of January.

The bounties in question are $400 for veterans, re-enlisting, and $300 for others, which the War Department had undertaken to pay under the last call of the President for 500,000 men. But even some of the Republican members did not quite relish this proceeding of the War Department; and consequently, upon motion of Senator FESSENDEN, a proviso was adopted that no bounty, except what is provided by law—which is $100—shall be paid after the 5th of January.

By way, also, of contracting the view taken by the War Department, and acted upon, that the food derived from the payment of commutation money was entirely at the control of that department, it was also declared that it shall be paid into the treasury, to be drawn out only on requisition in the case of other public money, though the money so paid in to be kept as a special deposit, and is appropriated as applicable only to the expenses of the draft, and for the procurement of substitutes.

We had almost forgotten the fact of Congress having passed another resolution, which is calculated to instruct the people as regards their duty as citizens. It declares that "it is the duty of the people to render every aid in their power to the constituted authorities of the government in crushing out the rebellion."

After the Abolition majority in Congress shall have passed this resolution about a dozen times more, the people will, probably be taught their duty to their government. But it strikes us that the people understand their duties much better than our congressmen do theirs. Their idea of supporting "the government," is not the cheerful payment of enormous taxes, but it is to support the administration in all its absurd and ruinous proceedings.

GENERAL CORCORAN. The late Gen. CORCORAN, whose death, by falling from his horse, was announced in Friday's paper, was a much more important personage than the people generally were aware of. He was only known as the chivalric leader of the celebrated 69th regiment, which gained such undying laurels in their desperate fighting at the battle of Bull Run.

But CORCORAN, it seems, descended from a warlike ancestry. He was of the celebrated LUCAS family, to which the great SARTISFIELD belonged, who fell at the head of his army two centuries ago, at the celebrated battle of Amherst by WILLIAM the third.

In April, 1861, Gen. CORCORAN went to the war in Virginia, and was taken prisoner at the Bull Run engagement. His heroism in that engagement, and the integrity of his command, are still vividly remembered by the country. Taken to Richmond, and from thence to almost every government prison in the South, he was finally selected as one of the captives who should be executed if the Union authorities had certain captured pirates against the South, he was in August, 1862, released, and was soon after appointed Brigadier General, his commission bearing date from the battle of Bull Run.

Upon his return from Richmond he was received with the most flattering ovations in every Northern city through which he passed. He subsequently was ordered to Suffolk, where, in the mercurious engagements and skirmishes fought in that section of Virginia, he again distinguished himself. Recently he has been stationed in the vicinity of Fairfax Court House, near which place, it is stated, he received his fatal injuries. While stationed at Suffolk he had an unfortunate affair with Col. Kimball, resulting in the death of the latter, the verdict of the country was unambiguously in favor of him whose sudden death we are now called to chronicle.

REPUBLICAN. The Philadelphia Age, in speaking of the action of a Conservative National Convention recently held in that city and presided over by Hon. ANSON KIRKPATRICK, in reference to the next Presidential election, says: "The fact, however, of such a meeting taking place, at a time so abnormal in regard to all political action as the present, cannot but suggest reflections as to the position it is proper for a journal, which intends to be sincere and faithful, to assume regarding the question which is the object of this meeting."

The uncertainty which hangs over the honesty of the next Presidential election, the doleful which is entertained by many persons as to the continued existence of the elective franchise, renders it difficult to assume any policy or any position which may not be altered by subsequent events. It seems almost foolish to act now in matters of politics as we did when the regular order of things prevailed. Then, championage, advocacy, conventions, nominations, canvasses and campaigns, were predicated on the knowledge that however improperly the candidates had been brought before the people, once there, there would be a bona fide choice in the people between the nominees, of which no power could deprive them.

If, then, we had that positive certainty, which of old existed, there was to be an election for President in the fall of 1864—that a real choice by the people was to be permitted—we should feel at liberty, as journalists of old did, to express some opinions as to the considerations which should influence patriotic men in the very grave matter of the election of a Presidential candidate. But if, as many honest men think, the fall elections of this year forbid us to indulge in any such hope; if we cannot shut our eyes to the 30,000 soldiers, whom Mr. STANTON himself boasted of having sent into this State; if we cannot fail to remember the crimes against the elective franchise of the people of Maryland and Delaware—we would be doing ourselves, and the conservative citizens of our State, injustice if we appeared to do that in reality which we were conscious was but a mockery.

If the opinion of our friends were ours, that there would be no real choosing of a President by the people in the fall of 1864, but that the next occupant of that chair will be the nominee of the bayonet, we should think that any party or organiza-likely to pay and can pay without utterly impoverishing itself, but on its whole property or a large part of its property is either a very great simplification or a very great complication.

When it is remembered that experience shows that real estate in this country is practically unmovable, as a basis for taxation, and that, therefore, it must nearly equal the value of all the personal property in the free States, the effect of such an argument of once becomes apparent. But the Herald, in its money article of yesterday, is still more frank. After alluding to Mr. CHASE's pretended anxiety to return to specie payments, it refers to the experience of England after the Napoleonic Wars, when the interests of the commercial and industrial classes were sacrificed to carry out the designs of those who represented the moneyed and landed interests, and it adds:

"Mr. CHASE may attempt to re-enact the role of the English aristocracy in the decade subsequent to 1815 at the expense of the stock jobbers and speculators who have been enriched through his blundering financial policy; but if the matter be left to the people until the war is over the result will be performed with much greater facility. Unlike England, the Government here is in the hands of the working classes, who have no direct interest in the public debt; and when the financial obligations of the country become onerous upon them, they will be more ready to pay than the aristocracy of England, who were willing to do the bidding of their constituents. There would then be no difficulty in the way of an immediate restoration of the specie basis, as our State institutions have always in their hands a sufficient security of coin to warrant a resumption at any moment."

This is a very invidious doctrine. He must be willfully blind who cannot see that we have no direct interest in the public debt, and in the mean while, to insist that Congress shall impose such taxes as will raise a revenue somewhat more nearly commensurate with the expenditure than it has yet been. If we are not wise enough to use a little of this sort of product, we have no prospect to forestall what is before us.
