From recent developments, however, it appears that HALE, in his dissertation upon the degeneracy of the times, was only speaking in a pickwikian sense indulging in one of his accustomed bits of pleasantry. It turns out that this same wag of a U. S. Senator was not long since engaged in secur ing the release from a common jail of a person charged with having committed a crime against the Government. For this little service he received the comfortable sum of three thousand dollars. HALE'S instification is that he was acting as an Attorney and not as a Senator in this business, which we consider another o his jokes; for who in the name of BLACK STONE ever heard of a three thousand dollar retaider, in such a case as the one in question. It was the Senator who was engaged; his influence as a Senator, not his limited ability as an Attorney was what was required to resour
