James II, a party existed in England which maintained "that no breach of law or contract, no excess of cruelty, rapacity, or licentiousness on the part of a rightful secessionists seemed to have been forgotten. But the shot from Sunter brought that the section is a second institute in the party of the propolation calling for 75.000 licentiousness on the part of a rightful sovereign, could justify his people in withstanding him by force." The adherents of this party were called Tories.

In the days of the American Revolution, a large party existed in America, who were jealous of the extension of the power of the people; its adherents were opposed to the revolution, were favorable to unconditional support of his government; thus they were the enemies of George Washington, and they were called Tories.

In these days of Abraham Lincoln, a large party exists, who are the legitimate of the poor of his administration, he aimed at conciliation, and corrollists. With a ferceily prevented the most streeting tensor of his administration, he aimed at conciliation, and corrollists.

large party exists, who are the legitimate representatives of the Tories of King James and King George, and who are at this day the "unconditional supporters of the government:" drasding the agreement of the hour we had forcotten history.

In 1838, Henry Clay, in the Senate of the United States, regarded the Aboli-

pose long since to be "no union with slaveholders." This was also proclaimed through Helper's Book; whose false figures and false statements of slaveholding cruelties, of the barbarism of slavery, and the helplessness of the South, as well in the statement of emening the bers of Congress fully endorsed and recommended, as the text book of the party in 1860.

But the records of Seward, Banks, Lincoln, Wilson and Phillips, will show equally with this text-book, that the program of the party now in nower, was bility of slaveholders to office; no racog people shorn of their sovereignty and nition of pro slavery men, except as liberty.

their country and their race.

But what had we to expect from the people of the South, who had for years witnessed the people of the North trampling he fugitive slave provision of the Constiution; and when they bad just witnesse this expression of the determination of the people of the North, thus preparing to overthrow their rights? Lincoln was elected, and with this dark prospect before them, the sgittation was extreme.

South Carolina second on the 20th of December, 1860. Lincoln declined to relieve the anxiety of the people; the exhibition of a conciliatory spirit on his part might have arrested secession; but y the 1st of February the seven leading tton States had seceded. This was succeeded by a run, the remaining States were waiting for conciliation and compromise from the North.

Lincoln was inaugurated; his speech was couched in language so doubtful, that some interpreted it to mean war, others After the message, Lincoln preserved the most obstinate silence. Seward predicted as he had done before, a settlement in sixty days. Bearagard, in the measitime, continued to besiege Fort Sumter with increasing batteries, and Lincoln's supporters clamored for war and "blood".

supporters clamored for war and "blood letting."

The South was taunted; the great compromise man and border State Union leader, Crittenden, was treated by Lincoln as a cypher, he being a slaveholder. Lincoln was busy making his appointments; the interests of the country were laft to take care of themselves: the Aboli left to take care of themselves; the Aboli tion party was to be braced; and who were his appointees? Let Helper answer. Every one was an Abolitionist; cabinet officers, custom house officers, postmas the mad exditement of the hour we had forgotten history.

South Carolina had seceeded on the 20th of December. 1860, seventy four days before the expiration of Mr. Buohanan's term of office; during which time the sentiment of the country was divided. The foremost statesmen of the day strenagely opposed coercion, as tending to everlasting and the overthrow of State rights, which, at our believes of liberty. May they ever be preserved inviolate.

Mr. John Quincy Adams, when he was President of the United States, wrote that be preserved inviolate.

Mr. John Quincy Adams, when he was President of the United States, wrote that he had "unequivocal evidence," of the existence of a plot in 1804 formed by New England Federalists, the purpose of which was the dissolution of the Union. Their object according to the evidence given by Mr. Adams, was to form two separate in dependent governments, the Northern States to form a more "tenergetic Government." it was considered essential to success, that the State Governments must ernment;" it was considered essential to success, that the State Governments must be favorable, "so that those who acted should be supported by State laws."

Mr. Jefferson, in 1820, at the time of the Missonri anti slavery excitement, charged certain of the Federal leaders with monarchism, and that this anti-slavery agitation was a mere party trick to obtain power; he wrote, that these leaders "are taking advantage of the virtuous feelings of the people, to effect a division of the people by a geographical line," and that "some of these leaders if they could attain the power, their ambition would rather use it to keep the Union together; but others have ever had in view its separation."

In 1838 Honny Clar in the Carting of the war would have been averted and we should now be a united people. Are we not now realizing the truth of the views expressed by Alexander Hamilton, one of the wisest of the founders of our Union, showing that he regarded the coercion of States as "one of the maddest projects that was ever devised?"

The tollowing extract from a speech delivered by him in 1788 in the New York State Convention for retifying the Constitution of the United States, who ald be kept before the people. "The States can never lose their powers till the whole people of America are robbed of their liberties. These must go together. They must support each other or meet a common fate." I wish the Constitution of the Union together; but there are robbed of their liberties. These must go together. They must support each other or meet a common fate." I wish the Constitution of the Union together; but there are robbed of their liberties. They must support each other or meet a common fate." I wish the Constitution of the Union together; but the Constitution of the Union together; but the Constitution of the Union together, the the Constitution of the Union together. They must support each other or meet a common fate." I wish the Constitution of the Union together, the three devised? member, that the Constitution under examination is framed upon truly Republi the United States, regarded the Abolicionists as the enemies of the Union; and in order to excite the imaginations and stimulate the rage of the people of the free States against the people in the slave States, the slaveholder is held up and represented as the most "atrogious of human beings." Have not these traitors to the Constitution and to the people, at last succeeded in arraying one position. tors to the Constitution and to the people, at last succeeded in arraying one portion against another portion of the Union?

He indeed must be blind, and must have read the history of our country for the past forty years to little purpose, who does not now, alas, too late, perceive that to the Abolitionis's do we owe the ruin of our country.

Their leaders had avowed their purtage of the constitution as war and to the perceive that to the country.

Their leaders had avowed their purtage of compliance will never be confined to a single State. This being the case can we suppose it wise to hazard a civil war? It would be a nation at war with itself. Can any reasonable man be well disposed to wards a Government that makes war and carnage the only means of supperting it by the sword? Every such war must involve the innocent with the guilty. This volve the innocent with the guilty. This single consideration should not be inefficient to dispose any peaceable citizen against such a Government.

It is not to be expected that the party ing cruelties, of the barbarism of slavery, and the helplessness of the South, as well as whose programme of emancipation, Seward and some sixty Abolition members of the supplementary of the supplem gramme of the party now in power, was known before their election, and those who voted for Lincoln, did so, knowing that if elected, he was pledged to the that if elected, he was pledged to the coerced Union, it can only be under a coerced Union, it can only be under a coerced Union. collowing policy:

"No union with slaveholders; ineligiform, with the States overthrown and the ruffians, outlaws and criminals."

This was the policy laid down in Helper's 'Impending Crisis.'' (pp. 155 6) endorsed by Seward and his confederates. Alas! that America should be ruled by such statesmanship. With such purposes proclaimed from the stump, and by their press and pulpits, these men were placed in power by the votes of the Republican party, who thereby endorsed with open eves the proscriptive policy persued

Is any one mad enough to believe, that the party now in power, tyrannical and insolent as its leaders have shown themselves to be, the party whose ranks are filled with a mushroon aristocracy, with people who despised the honest mechanic and Democracy, will yield the power they now control without a struggle? They have invoked the use of the bayonet to abolish slavery, and subjugate our coun-Is any one mad enough to believe, that party, who thereby endotsed with open abolish elavery, and subjugate our counagainst slaveholders from the outset of trymen of the South and dreading the bal-Lincoln's administration.
