has just happened at Santiago, stir the blood in the contemplation of them, at the distanced of many ivers after their occurrence. Human nature has been shocked by numerous tragedies of similar fearful import. The great London fire was attended by none of the heartrend-ing circumstances of this, event, but it was nevertheless a most falamitons and impressive occurrence, a sketch of which, by John Evelyn, in his diary, places the spectadie if Hvely colors before the im-agination. The fire began about ten o'clock on the evening of the 2d of September, a fierce easterly wind blowing over the the spectadie of the Currency.
