LOCAL INTELLIGENCE. TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 22, 1864 The Subsistence Committee.

Being present on Sunday night when the Subsistence Committee so bountifuly entertained the Eighth Michigan Regiment, we could not help noticing the admirable manner in which everything is managed by those ladies and gentlemen having immediate charge of City Hall. As many of our readers may never have been present when a regment of tired and hungry soldiers were being enterbe uninteresting. As a general thing the Subsistence Committee are notified by telegraph of the time when a regiment will reach the city, and its numbers, when they set about preparing the rewhich, though varied, generally consists of hot coffee, soup, bread, crackers, cheese, krout, apples, bolouna sausages, etc. There is seven tables, exding the entire length of the hall, which will accommodate over one thousand men at a time. Knowing the tee of the Legislature were in this city exact number of men to arrive, the subtables, and as soon as their presence is eations which had appeared in the coltables, and as soon as their presence is announced, the hot coffee and soup are served up. During this opperation, the scene is a lively one. Young ladies and scene is a lively one. The wind scene is a lively one. The winds were served up to have been written by one of the winds. All ready, the men march into the Hall, an officer at their head—they "halt", "dress up," "front face," "fix bayonets," "stack arms," "unsling knapsacks," "right face," and march to the attack upon the good things set before them. The repast over, after cheers for their entertainers, the men resume the trappings of war, and go on their way rejoicing. Such is a brief, but imperfect sketch of what transpires almost every day and night at City Hall. All honor to those men and women who devote their time to such a noble cause.

The report says:

Mr. N. P. Sawyer, the managing editor of the Pittisburgh Commercial, was called and examined. He denied all knowledge of who was the author of the communications in that paper which were the subject of this investigation. Mr. John C.
