Nobody will do Without It! with the Ottoman Porte or the Barbary Powers because the one is the sovereign of a nation recognizing polygamy, and the other the slavery of the whites as well as the blacks. The man possessed with a single idea is of all the most unfitted for a Statesman. That high character implies a condition of mind which contemplates things as they are, and which forbears the removal of a less mischief when solved to remove it, it may be obliterated, but the Government it. and sectional interests.

Statesmen in every European Government may be impressed with the superiority of republican institutions. They would, however, be deemed infatuated to the last degree, if, taking advantage of some partial indications among the people, they should seek to bring on a crisis. They, with better judgment, adhere to the existing order of things, well knowing the changes, to be beneficial, must be permanent. It was not at a single bound that England, the freest of the propagation becomes the fetters of to relapse into the old despotism; and now, with her journals silent and liberty prostrate, how much better is her condition than before the revolution of 1789?

It was error, maddened error, as well as treason in the South seceding as a remedy for her grievances. Great revolutions are only justified by great oppressions. The South should have remained in the Union, and fought her the mg is of the Constitution. She laid the foundation of the Government and reared its superstructure, and the broad folds of its flag furnished her ample protection. She would have done this from pariotic considerations and ancestral re-collections, and sternly discarded the ignis fatuus counsels of her Yanceys.

But let New England remember that the South, in rebellion, is but acting out doctrines once maintained in all sincerity by herself. Let her remember that uthern slavery was planted by her own enterprise, her ships reaping nearly all the profits of the slave trade, which the Constitution protected till 1808. These Civilization may be said to have commenced its march on the plains of Judea with the establishment of the Jewish theocracy. Spreading thence to India and Egypt, from the latter it was transported to Greece, where it shown brightly in its classic literature, and its efforts toward a system of self-government. Thence it was transferred to Rome, where it beamed with renewed luster. Peculiar causes operating in Italy resulted at the same time in the Roman republic. causes operating in Italy resulted at the same time in the Roman republic. These, the first recorded efforts for a democratic Government, possessed in herent defects, and both, at the period of the Christian era, were absorbed in the imperial despotism of Octavius Casar. The empire ran its career of centuries till at length the hopes of the human race lay buried for a time in the tomb of the dark ages. They awoke again with the revival of learning in the twelfth the revival of learning in the twelfth the receiving an undaying in century, and receiving an undying impetus in the ages of the Reformation, and of discovery which followed. Starting with the representative feature and the free principles of the English monarchy, they searched the storchouse of free commonwealths for enduring materials for the new strucsentative feature and the free principles of the English monarchy, they searched the storehouse of free commonwealths for enduring materials for the new structure. It is indeed an easy thing to destroy; but to call into being, whether in material affairs or in those of morals and politics, great and useful works, taxes the highest faculties and resources of man. It is especially so in framing the institutions of government. For this, the learned sage and the man versed in practical affairs must join their anxious and patriotic labors. For the adoption, amid opposing interests, of any system, is needed the long and patient conference, the steady forbearance, the timely concession and compromise. The selfish principles must be held in check. A curb must be laid upon the passions. But for the destruction of the same system its needed only that we forbearthe exercise of the viriues and beaverther. tem it is needed only that we forbear the exercise of the virtues and benevolent affections and give full sway to the self.
