PARTICULAR NOTICE.

There are many preparations sold under the name of Bitters, put up in quart bottles, compounded of the cheapest whiskey or common rum, costing from 30 to 40 cents per gallon, its taste disguised by Anise or Coriander Seed.

This class of bitters has caused and will continue to cause, as long as they can be sold, hundreds to die the death of the drunkard. By their use the system is kept continually under the influence of Alcohol. Stimulants of the worst kind, the desire for liquor is created and kept up, and the result is all the horrors attendant upon a drunkard's life and death. Beware of them.

For those who desire and will have a Liquor Bitters, we publish the following receipt. Get One Bottle Hoofland's German Bitters, and mix with Three Quarts of Good Brandy or Whisky, and the result will be a preparation that will far excel in medical virtues and true excellence any of the many Liquor Bitters in the market, and will cost much less. You will have all the virtues of Hoofland's Bitters in connection with a good article of Liquor, at a much less price, than these inferior preparations will cost you.

DELICATE CHILDREN.

Those suffering from MARASMUS, wasting away, with scarcely any flesh on their bones, are cured in a very short time; one bottle in such cases, will have a most surprising effect.

DEBILITY,

Resulting from fevers of any kind—These Bitters will renew your strength in a very short time.

FEVER AND AGUE,

he chills will not return if these Bitters are used. No person in a Fever and Ague District should be without them.

From Rev. J. Sanden Prince, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects; I yet know of no sufficient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23, 1862. J. NEWTON BROWN.

ATTENTION SOLDIERS,

AND THE FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS

We call the attention of all having relations or friends in the army to the fact that "HOOFLAND'S German Bitters" will cure nine tenths of the diseases incident to exposures and privations incident to camp life. In the lists, published almost daily in the newspapers, on the arrival of the sick, it will be noticed that a very large proportion are suffering from debility. Every case of that kind can be readily cured by Hoofland's German Bitters. We have no hesitation in stating that if these Bitters were freely used among our soldiers hundreds of lives might be saved, that otherwise would be lost.

The proprietors are daily receiving thankful letters from sufferers in the army and hospitals, who have been restored to health by the use of those Bitters sent to them by their friends.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

NOTICE TO ALL CONCERNED.

Among several medicines of self-important pretensions there is a peculiar heeding of contempt which all physicians that advertise and treat the diseases named in this card, (Piles excepted,) say why this should be they not be considered quacks? Are they not aware that all physicians treat diseases of every denomination, in fact nobody but the very diseases that are no otherwise than very refined parties. I suppose they would not let one of their family go for a party that has labored years for their benefit, because he says he see the fact, and that family physician is not a husband so he can get the case. Often the fee almost deprived the party of his life. He comes at last to the physician that advertises. Because are they to know? Are they not aware that Sir Ashley Cooper, Sir Benjamin Brodie, Sir Charles Bell and M. Paul Ricord devoted years in the treatment of these diseases? These men are held up as shining lights in the medical world; I don't assert that all men are worthy that publish, still there are a great number of them that are. I have devoted myself to the study and treatment of PRIVATE DISEASES upwards of 40 years, and without egotism, do say I have saved hundreds from years of misery and untimely death. My treatment is confined to the vegetable altogether, as I think it is the best and most certain. If I can any power to bring hundreds of certificates if I thought it necessary. I recently to my general success, but my long residence in this city is sufficient proof without adding more. Spermatorrhœa and all diseases arising from it are cured in a much shorter time than heretofore. It behooves every young man and woman to be careful in selecting a physician. The different advertisements that are seen in our papers are not worth a cent, and no benefit will arise from answers than only loss of health and money. Hundreds are cured annually by my new remedies. Address BOX 500 Pittsburgh Postoffice. jan6-lyd

Congressional vs. State Legislation.

The Excitement at Trenton, N. J.—Governor Parker's Message.

The Trenton True American says that there is great excitement at Trenton, growing out of what the editor calls the effort now making in Congress to usurp the right of this State to regulate her own internal improvement. Governor Parker, in his message to the Legislature, invoking attention to the subject, says:

Two inquiries naturally arise. First, would the proposed action of Congress, if consummated, effect the pecuniary interests of this State? Second and chiefly, would such action infringe upon the sovereignty of the State?

At an early day, the State of New Jersey, for a consideration, made a contract with certain companies, during a specified time, not to construct or authorize others to construct, any railroad across the State, to be used for the transportation of passengers or merchandise between New York and Philadelphia, without consent of said companies. This privilege was granted partly as an inducement to the investment of private funds in what was then considered a hazardous enterprise, and partly in consideration of the transfer to the State, of a portion of their capital stock, and the agreement annually to pay the amount of certain duties in the State Treasury. Whether such a contract was wise and calculatad to advance the public welfare, is a question not involved in the consideration of the subject now presented. The contract, as it stands, has been sustained by the Courts, and whatever difference of opinion may exist, as to the policy that dictated it, our solemn agreement cannot now be repudiated without the violation of law, nor dishonor. It is for you to inquire whether the proposed action of Congress would affect the interest of the State in the stock, dividends or transit duties, derived from said companies.

The pecuniary interest of the State is of little importance in comparison with the principle involved; and I therefore direct your attention, particularly, to the second inquiry before mentioned. New Jersey is a sovereign State, and it is our duty, by every lawful means, to protect and defend her sovereignty; and to transmit, unimpaired, to posterity, all her rights as they were received by us from our fathers. In the exercise of her rightful power she may build, maintain and manage lines of public travel within her territory; or she may grant to others the right to construct such works, under such regulations and upon such conditions as she may see fit to impose. When the States entered into the national compact they yielded to the General Government the right to establish roads for the convenance of mails, and the power to construct military roads in time of war, for the transportation of troops; but even these roads must be operated by the Government, and not through the agency or for the benefit of private corporations.

A law of Congress, proposing to exceed the powers granted by the States, infringes upon their reserved rights, and detracts from the State Legislatures a portion of their rightful authority. The roads which Congress proposes to invest with such extraordinary powers are already posts routes; and the President has been authorized, by law, to use any railroad in the country for military purposes. Therefore, no additional legislation is needed to make these roads post or military routes, nor has any been asked for by the President, the Secretary of War or the Postmaster General.

The third section of the bill declares the object of its originators, which is to empower the companies therein named, not merely to carry the mail, or convey troops and munitions of war, but to transport goods, wares and merchandise of all descriptions, and passengers, between New York and Philadelphia, notwithstanding any law of this State to the contrary. And not only is this authority to be given on the main line of roads, but the proposition before Congress is, to grant the power to carry freight and passengers on all branches thereof, built and to be built. If such a law be valid, the Legislature of the State is a powerless body, and our citizens must hereafter beg Congress for the privilege of constructing works of public improvement in our own soil. The passage of such an act (although of no binding source, because unconstitutional) would be an insult to the people of New Jersey. It would take the creatures of our law, now under the ban of judicial injunction for violation of our statutes, and, direct opposition to the decision of our courts, attempts to make them independent of, and superior to the power that created them. Such action deserves and should receive the strongest legislative remonstrance. Let it be distinctly understood, by those who would inflict this wrong and indignity upon our State, that while New Jersey will comply with every legal obligation and will respect and protect the rights of all, she will not permit any infringement of her rights without resorting to every lawful means to prevent it.

JOEL PARKER.

Interior View of the Confederacy.

A gentleman who left Atlanta, Ga., about a fortnight ago, called upon the editor of the New York Express on Tuesday, and gave him the following insight into the affairs of the Confederacy. He is a Northern man by birth, and left the Confederacy to escape the conscription. He had been a resident of Atlanta for several years, and has resided there continually during the war. He came into our lines via Cleveland, Tennessee. He says when he left Atlanta, there were not many Confederate troops there, but the hospitals were filled with the sick and wounded. The railroads leading from Atlanta were all in good order, but the rolling stock, owing to constant usage, was in need of frequent repair. The Government foundries both at Atlanta and Rome were running day and night, turning out ordnance and small arms. The mechanics and workingmen employed in these foundries were mostly foreigners, and nearly all of them are said to be skillful and experienced men. There was no lack of provisions or other necessaries of life, though prices were exhorbitantly high, in consequence of the depreciated currency, and the schemes of speculators. An immense quantity of dry goods had found their way into the Confederacy through Wilmington last fall and winter, and these have been found amply sufficient to supply the more urgent necessities of the people. In central and northern Georgia there were several looms in operation, turning out coarse cloth for the army. Paper, which had all along been very scarce, was getting plentier, owing to the establishment of newspaper mills in various parts of the State. There are four newspapers now published at Atlanta, namely, the Confederacy, the Intelligencer, the Memphis Appeal, and the Knoxville Register. In regard to the general progress of the war, the general sentiment of the people seemed to be, that General Lee, Johnson and Longstreet would be able, not only to hold their ground, but to make occasional raids into the North. They have every confidence in Jeff. Davis, and express themselves certain of ultimately achieving their independence. Nevertheless, there is under these professions a conviction that they will have to eventually succumb before the superior numbers, wealth and resources of the North—but that conviction, of course, seldom finds audible expression. There was an attachment to the old flag and the old Union, in Central Georgia, for the first year or two of the rebellion—but it is now disappearing, under the influence of the radical legislation at Washington. At Atlanta, as everywhere else, Mr. Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation was published in the Confederate journals. There was no effort made anywhere to keep it a secret. The Confederates were in the habit of speaking of it with disrespect. There has been no trouble with the negroes in that part of Georgia during the war. They never were more docile, or more obedient—though they knew as well what was going on as their masters.

Divorces in Poland.

From Chambers' Journal.

At the early breakfast the Princess appeared in a Cashmere morning dress, wearing a pearl necklace fastened with a rich diamond clasp, earrings and bracelets to match. She afterwards proposed showing us her dresses, so all her finery and that of her niece was displayed. She also produced her jewelry, of which she possessed enough to adorn the whole country. A quiet individual who appeared at dinner was, I believe, her present husband; she had been married several times, as is common in Poland, although the Poles are Catholics, and divorce is not allowed in that church. I know not how they contrive it, but nothing is more common than to meet a gentleman having two or three wives all alive, or a lady this same number of husbands; and what is most strange, the parties thus married and unmarried meet on the friendliest terms. This taste for and facility of divorcing leads to unheard complications of relationship. I saw various examples of these intricate connections during my sojourn in Poland.

One day a cousin of Count S—— arrived, he and his wife were hardly seated when another couple were announced. They all seemed to be on the most friendly terms. In the evening one of the gentlemen played at cards with two ladies and a third who was staying at Ostrowski. When he arrived the Countess S—— said to me, "Is it not curious to see my cousin Alexander playing cards with his three wives?" "Is this three wives!" I exclaimed, "surely you jest." "Not at all," she answered, "nothing is more common here. He now regrets his divorcement from the first, he liked her best; but she has also married again. They are all very friendly and agreeable to one another." Countess S—— continued:

"You will hardly meet a person in the country who has not been married more than once. The Russians reproach us on our facility for divorcement, as they marry for life, we, for as long as we please. It is better than living together on ill terms." This seemed very startling to me, but it was a fact of which I was convinced by personal observation.

One bitterly cold day, when the very aspect out doors was enough to make one shudder, Countess S—— Franklin Muller and myself, were making artificial flowers; Anna, who braved I know not how many degrees of cold, was gone on a sledging excursion with her father. As we were seated by a window, we saw a sledge drawn by horses coming up the avenue. We were wondering who the courageous visitors could be, when the beautiful Countess Z——, a near neighbor was announced. On entering she said to Countess S——, "I have not a moment to stay, and have something important to say, my husband intends proposing for your daughter, he is an excellent man, so I beg of you not to let any delicacy of sentiment on my account be an obstacle to their union. I have already obtained my divorce, and am on the eve of contracting another marriage. I leave for Varsovie this evening." Adieu my dear friend." So saying, she disappeared as quickly as she had entered. I own that if a thunderbolt had fallen at my feet, I could not have been surprised. Fraulein Mullen and I, who had stood up to leave the room had not time to gain the door ere the communication was made. Countess S—— begged of us to remain, and as soon as her friend left, observed, without seeming the least amazed at what she had heard that Count A—— was too old for Anna. Undoubtedly, he has a very large fortune, but, added she, "we have almost given our word to another person." She was evidently nowise shocked at the strange announcement. Accordingly, Count A—— did come the next day, made formal demand and was refused—Anna's opinion coinciding with that of her parents.
