

The Daily Post.

TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 5, 1864. A YEARNING FOR THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Under this caption our readers will find in to-day's Post an editorial from the World, to which we direct their attention. It was suggested, it will be seen, by an article in the Bostonian Review for April, in which that able but erratic publicist, concerning the pending Presidential campaign, that, "nothing but the slavery question stands between the Democratic party and a signal triumph in November."

It appears very evident to us that when the Democratic National Convention assembled in July next, it will have something to do to attract its attention from the slavery of the South. The preservation, or rather the restoration, of the lost liberties of the people of the North, will be a task more befitting the representatives of the great conservators of the Constitution. While detesting the infamous hypocrisy of casting Abolitionism, we must not be blinded to the infamies of the leaders of the rebellion. To these two sectional organizations are indebted for our present troubles, and both must be put down before we have peace again.

As long as the country was at peace, the Democracy of the Union, being a national organization, was bound to protect every section in its constitutional rights. Being a constitutional party, we were, by virtue of our organization and teaching, the defenders of all against innovation. When secret societies arose to violate the rights of naturalized citizens, and persecute people because of their religious convictions, the Democratic party was bound to resist these encroachments. In like manner, when a sectional party, organized, avowedly, in opposition to the South and its institutions, we were bound to come to the rescue and save that section from fatal oppression. But here our duty ceased. When the Southern leaders threw off their allegiance, and resorted to the sword to secure the dismemberment of the Union, they ceased having any claim whatever upon the Northern Democracy. Nay, more, they turned us into determined, unrelenting foes until they returned to their allegiance. We can have no sympathy for the leaders in the rebellion, however much we may commiserate the hard condition of their people. No appeal from Northern Democrats was sufficient to stay the frenzy of secession. The principal leaders in the revolt—although both houses of Congress, besides the Supreme Court, were against the mad teachings of the Abolitionists—were bent upon dissolution. Against the election of Lincoln their minds were fixed, and the Democracy, which had for a quarter of a century guarded them against the assaults of fanaticism, they abandoned to set up an independent government for themselves. From that moment we became the deadly foes of the Southern leaders, as we must remain so until they again submit to the authority of the parent power. In their rash haste in abandoning the Union and the Northern friends of the constitutional rights of every section, they acted like the base Judaeu "who threw a pearl away richer than all his tribe."

The business of the Democratic party in its next national convention, will not be the discussion of slavery in any particular. We always regarded the institution as being a local one, subject to State limits, not national to be disappearing in the border slave States, and partly by the action of slaveholders themselves, we do not see any reason for giving ourselves any further concern whatever about it. Let us, therefore, leave it to its fate, and direct our attention and efforts to matters which concern us more nearly.

The present Administration, while laboring for the sudden and complete emancipation of the slaves of the South, is, at the same time, as diligently and dexterously active for the political subjection of the free citizens of the North. The President has instituted a shameful scheme by which he hopes to secure his re-election, by the one-tenth outrage, already successfully inaugurated in Arkansas and Louisiana. In addition to this outrage, the present Administration Congress has organized the three territories of Colorado, Nevada and Nebraska, by enabling them to come into the Union as States in October next as a proclamation of the President, in time to cast their votes for his re-election. There is no precedent for this in the history of the country, but the violation of the Constitution in this respect is serious—the three new States are to be secured to Lincoln in the approaching election. (The legal method, after the enabling acts are passed, is for the territories to form State Constitutions, and then present their Constitutions to Congress and ask for admission. If the Constitutions of the new States comply with that of the United States, being republican in form, the new States are admitted by a vote of both Houses. But here, to secure three electoral votes, the President is permitted to admit States as he attempted to re-construct them, and a Presidential election allows Nevada to counteract Pennsylvania in the electoral college, in violation of the most solemn requirements of the Constitution. Usurpations like these, for which the Abolitionists will have to answer to the people, will engage the attention of the next Democratic National Convention. Let slavery, like every other thing in rebellion, await the consequences of its revolt against its legitimate Government. We have nothing to do with negro slavery; our care hereafter must be the restoration of the liberty of the people, and also the restoration of our distracted Union.

MISCEGENATION.

The Pittsburgh Gazette, yesterday, in order to justify the new Abolition doctrine of miscegenation, or "a subtle commingling of the races," quotes numerous statistics, to prove that the Southern people have, for some time, been practicing what our leading Abolitionists are now openly teaching. We are not disposed to doubt the accuracy of our neighbor's statistics, but where was the use in going South to find the practical results of miscegenation, when so many evidences of that "subtle commingling" are right here at home? Look around and behold for yourself.

But suppose that this revolting doctrine is practiced in the South, is that a reason why Abolitionists should openly defend and teach it in the North? If not, what does the Gazette's column of statistics and twaddle amount to? Our business is not to defend Southern abuses, but to expose the disgusting administration of fanatical pretenders.

The article we published on Saturday from the London Review, on miscegenation, has strangely agitated our Abolition neighbors; the Dispatch, yesterday, sparked with indignation and rage. That astute and brilliant luminary, declared that the object of the Review, in discussing the new Abolition abolitionism, was "to aid the rebel cause." If this be so, our profound little neighbor should pounce upon Wendell Phillips, President Lincoln and the other champions of "the sublime commingling of the races." Had these persons not advanced and advocated the new idea, the London Review would not have had an opportunity to dissent from their teachings.

News and General Items.

On Monday and Tuesday of last week, 2,840 emigrants arrived at New York. The Legislature of Maine has defeated the Lord's day to extend legally from midnight Saturday to midnight Sunday. Queen Victoria has given $15,000 to aid the cause of Christianity among the poor of London.

A Brooklyn (N. Y.) minister has, it is said, made $50,000 speculating in stocks.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher has returned from the editorial chair of the New York Independent.

A Paris letter writer ungenerally describes the new Empress of Mexico as down-shouldered, and by no means handsome.

The Boston Post says "hundreds of families in Boston are either dispensing with butter entirely, or using it in the smallest possible quantities, on account of its exorbitant price."

It is stated that the number of soldier soldiers called out for the army is 12,000, to be distributed as follows:—At Cairo, 3,000; Boston, 2,000; New York, 2,000; Philadelphia, 3,000; Baltimore, 1,000.

The Canadian Ministry has been formed. Sir E. D. Tache is premier, general minister of militia, Mr. Cartier attorney general for Canada East, and Mr. Galt finance minister.

At a coin sale in Providence, Rhode Island, on Wednesday last, a New York "Excelsior" cent of 1787, twenty-two dollars, and a small eagle "Washington" copper worth dollars.

CHICAGO, Mo., has twelve Irish families and they have sent twelve volunteers to the Union army, besides some to the State militia, but not one to the Confederacy.

The Fremont men having obtained control of the Union party organization in Providence, the Lincoln men have lolled and formed a new Union Party Union organization.

This white servants at the Burnet House, in Cincinnati, having struck for higher wages, the proprietor has imported a lot of "American citizens of African descent" from Baltimore, who accepted the vacated situations.

All newly elected Justices are required by law, to notify the Prothonotary in writing of the acceptance of the office. If they neglect to do so within thirty days after the election no commission will issue.

The Government order prohibiting the export of coal to Canada applies only to anthracite—bituminous can be exported as before. The reason of the prohibition, is that anthracite coal finds its way to blockade runners, who value it for its smokeless qualities.

It is estimated that not less than 30,000 bales will be got out of Texas through Mexico, by way of Piedras Negras, Guerrero, Nier, &c., before the trade is broken up. The trade has thus far only been diverted by the military operations in Texas.

The Boston Journal relates that in the Southeastern part of Worcester county, Mass., soldiers' drawers are made by poor sewing women for forty-five cents the twelve pairs, and there must not be any machine sewing put into them. More work is sometimes required, and the increased sum of two cents the dozen pairs is granted extra.

Five Massachusetts men six feet high, were lately presented by Messrs. Ally and Good, who are not remarkable for their height, to the President, who, after inquiring whether they were all from that State, and being assured that they were said "why it seems to me that Massachusetts always sends her little men to Congress."

The contract of the Old Capital Prison is now being run through by Judge Advocate Major Turner, and each case properly disposed of as it comes up. About 800 cases have been dispatched within the last three weeks, some of the parties being discharged, some sent to other prisons, and some sent to the State penitentiary. The old stocks are not cleared out, but they are reduced and are held for larger prices. The stock abroad, too, has been decreasing, and some of the tobacco raised in other countries has thus far equalled the American. Those portions of Virginia which are reclaimed will produce some tobacco this year, but there is no danger of a surplus for years to come.

At three hundred dollars an acre, there are few other more valuable lands in the country. This is about the rate realized in Lancaster county. Those who have spare lands which are adapted to its growth can hardly plant more profitably.

The substance of a decision made last week by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia is reported as establishing the law of his property under the President's proclamation should, within the prescribed sixty days, "cease to be valid, and that such rebellion, and return to his allegiance to the United States," and that the simple removal from a rebellious to a loyal State, and not intended to the evidence of such returned allegiance. He must establish the fact of his restored loyalty by one act of obedience and decided import, before he can claim the benefit of the law.

The occupation of Brownsville by our troops, has brought the rebel trade through Mexico, to a standstill. An arrangement has been made by the rebels with the Mexican authorities, that as a retaliatory measure, the Government should make the same arrangement with the rebels, and the rest to private individuals. Some 2,000 barrels more were on the road from San Antonio, Texas, and still more would be on the way were it not for the fact that the rebels were not to be found on the premises for fear of the hauling for the time being has to be done with manual labor.

L. O. LAZARUS, late minister to Russia from the Confederacy, in a late speech at Millidgeville, Georgia, says, in relation to European opinion. "The intelligible people of Europe were divided in the expression of sympathy with the Confederates, and of admiration for the dignity and statesmanship of our republicans, and the valor, endurance and fortitude of our soldiers and people, but there were considerations of a political character operating against our recognition or intervention by the Governments of Europe."

Still the approval of intelligent European opinion was changing. Great Britain was sensible of any act that would incur the hostility of the United States, and she was not disposed to proceed in the expression of sympathy with the Confederates, and of admiration for the dignity and statesmanship of our republicans, and the valor, endurance and fortitude of our soldiers and people, but there were considerations of a political character operating against our recognition or intervention by the Governments of Europe."
