LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Progress of Industry. - That there is a steady progress in this country towards industry in religion must be evident to every careful observer. The most casual looker-on cannot fail to see everywhere around him an appalling increase of dissipation and immorality. In the larger cities of this country more especially, where opportunity means temptations, a lower in general means temptations to all the passions. Extravagance has become the rule, and pleasure seeking to be the goal at which all are striving to get.

Whether this state of affairs is the result of free thinking in religion, or the latter the result of moral laxity, is a question to be determined by the moral philosopher. Sufficient for the present is to know that in relation to the tendency to evade and destroy the lines of Christian duty, the non-commissioned officers and privates of the 28th Pennsylvania are no longer political machines. Their animators and managers are not the demagogues of the pulpit, but men who are wedded to the dogmas of the Christian religion.

It is to be hoped and is no doubt true that the majority of the ministers of every denomination are sincere in their desire to follow in the footsteps of their divine master. But, like all the true and Christian of the world, they are not perfect. They are not without faults and weaknesses, and it may be said, with truth, in all things relating to the church, they are not perfect. It is to be hoped and is no doubt true that the majority of the ministers of every denomination are sincere in their desire to follow in the footsteps of their divine master.
