PITTSBURGH: TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 19, 1884.

In our leader, yesterday, we were strumuch marred the sense of our meaning. NECESSITY OF MILITARY SUCCES-

The Secretary of the Treasury, upon swhose supposed financial ability the Abolitionists have relied with such implicit confidence, now informs the country that without military successes the nation's bankruptcy is certain. To this lamentable conclusion he has come at last. Three years of fanatical rule have rushed as to the very verge of ruin. This is no disloyal utterance of some "copperhead" or sympathizer with rebellion, but is the admission of the financial Minister of the Government—the officer who has the absolute control of our na-

After three years of agony and death, with the country bleeding at every pore, the Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, who, for sagacity has been compared to ALEXANDER HAMILTON, is compelled by his necessity, to announce what any one, save himself and his fanatical party, knew from the beginning of hostilities. For speaking as Mr. Chase has spoken, Gen. McClellan was Bar hunted from the army. That officer, In his famous letter written from Harriin his famous letter written from Harri1, son's Landing, in Virginia, advised the semies, and it is very seldom offered to have been tendered the command of the Department of California, and to have been tendered the command of the Department of California, and to have been tendered the command of the Department of California, and to have declined, wishing an active command in the field. It is said that the certain truths which the American can only learn from strangers or from experience.

Democratic republics extend the mollow NATH DIE. Democratic republics extend the practice of carrying favor with the many. Abolitionism were immediately set upon this track; nor did they cease the chase this is the most serious reproach that they drove him from the field. Victories in the field Abolitionism did not want at that early day of the rebellance of the majority is so absolute and irresistable that one must give upon the rebellance. The longer the war was pro

Proclamations of emancipation and confiscation, calculated, if not intended, to thoroughly unite the Southern people, were the means relied upon to now, after three years of these paper bullets, besides three years of carnage and of death, our great financial Secretary, upon his knees, confesses his weakness-he gives to Congress his last impressions how to relieve the country, but is compelled to close by saying that "without military successes all measures will fail." To this humiliating acknowledgment has the Administration come at last.

In view of these lamentable failures of the Admintstration, the reader will be puzzled to divine upon what conceivable hypothesis it can ask for another lease of power. What has it done to justify such brazen audacity? Its want of financial ability is acknowledged through its financial officer; its military failures are known and not denied, while its party in Congress is engaged in maka-ing buncomb speeches about emancipation, or laboring to crush the freedom of debate by the expulsion from the House of one of its advocates. Eighteen weeks of the people's time have thus been squandered by a Congress so corrupt, that even GREELY himself is compelled to say that the country cannot survive ten years more, if we entrust one destinies to such a set of political
