The Doings of Humanity. A pamphlet has been issued by the Commis-sioners appointed by the Pennsylvania Relief Association, to go to East Tennessee and investigate the condition of the suffering people of that region. From their report the following that region. From their report the following extract is taken:

"He is the wise policy of our military commanders to furnish rations, when necessary and practicable; to such as take the oath of allegiance, and also transportation to the Ohio river, to those who desire to go North. The happiest effects result from this humane treatment. One rebel deserver said that his heart never melted towards the federal government until he learned that it was feeding his wife and children. A rebel officer said he found it impossible to fight against such a government. So the traveller in the fable willingly threw off his closk under the general rays of the sun, though he had only wrapped it closer around him, when the wind tried to force it from his grasp."

This is a hard nut for the ultras, who are continually insisting upon the most rigorous treatment of the Southern people. Teatimony so direct and from so respectable and trustworthy a source in regard to the conquering power of kindness and magnanimity, is above suspicion or denial. But, without this testimony, it ought to be well understood that in general, hucian nature is most strongly influenced by magnanimity and generous treatment. In war times, it is true, the fact is lost sight of or stubbornly kept out of sight until the little amenities of intercourse at the outset have disappeared entirely before the growing barbarism incident to a reign of the destructive passions. What might have been "Christian warfare" at the commencement, soon becomes the grossest linhumanity.

Men cannot be at war all the time. There must come a period when the ploughahare and the reapling-hook must take the place of the Men cannot be at war all the time. There must come a period when the ploughabare and the reaping-hook must take the place of the sword. How necessary is it, then, that when the turbulent passions are allayed and peace reigns over the land, there should be no cause for recriminations and regrets as friends by those who were once commes. Men may contend with each other in honorable strife—may draw deeply of each other's blood in defence or assertion of a principle, and in the end strike hands as friends and brethren, but the perpetration of wrong and wanton barbarity engenders eternal detestation. The remembrance of brave acts against a foe, and noble distinterestedness towards the weak and defenceless, always brings respect and frequently issuing and profitable friendship.

Conquest by kindnoss is not rare either in war or in every day life. A few natures may be insensible to a good act, and requite generosity with contumely, but the majority of mankina oppose a feebler resistance to a brave and magnanimous foe than to a barbarous and unforgiving one. The extract above given shows the effect that benevolent trestment has upon those in arms against the Federal Government. In the earlier period of the present war instances of magnanimity were of frequent occurrence, and amenities were frequently exchanged between the combatants, but years of carnage and the changes of policy and commanders have made many an one exclaim "alas, for the rarity, of Christian charity." A re-establishment of the old Union was then the object of men's hopes, and with humane generals and an unobjectionable policy the Union element was steadily growing stronger in the insurrectionary States. The Union men of the South were then a tower of strength to the Government and a source of the greatest solicitude to the leaders of secession. All that, however, was soon changed when extreme anti-alvery men, were allowed to govern in council and to shape the Government wat the course of the greatest solicitude to the greatest solicitude to the greatest solicitude to the leaders of secession. All that, however, was soon changed when extreme anti-alvery men, were allowed to govern in council and to shape the Govern when extreme anti-slavery men, were allowed to govern in council and to shape the Covernment's policy inconformity with their own sectional hatred. The Unionism of the South vanished, like the vision of a dream, before the strocco blast of fanatical Abolitionism. A policy that made the Union a pretext for war upon domestic institutions; that justified negro stealing and made the armics an indiscriminate slave-freeing machine; that confiscated private es-ing an made the armites industrial materials are freeing machine; that confiscated private estates to private uses; that armed the slave against his master and his family; that allowed thousands of officials and agents to steal, and rob, and burn, and murder to the full extent of their base natures, was not the one to add to or thousands of officials and agents to steal, and rob, and burn, and murder to the full extent of their base natures, was not the one to add to or preserve Southern Unionism, and now all of us know that Southern Unionism, and now all of us know that Southern Unionism, and now all of us know that Southern Unionism, and now all of us know that Southern Unionism is a myth. There is sometimes a tact acquiescence, it is true, but it is not genuine; it is the crafty or forced delence of the sellish and the weak Ao the exactions of petty tyrants like then. Butler.

There was a time when "oaths of allegiance" were not required of women and children; when mills and food and agricultural implements and towns and hamilets were not destroyed with fire; when the war was waged against rebels in arms for the re-establishment of the Union, and not against non-combatants for the purpose of plunder and self-aggrandizement. Unionism South was then a resilty and broad belts of sunshine spanned the dark smoke-clouds of war. They are to be seen no more, only when a little glimmer is let in by the Christian Commission from the narrow field of its labors. With McClellan and his compeers disappeared from the scene the great hope of the nation; war lost its Christian characteristics, and bigotry would now rush us on to the commission of such acts of barbarism as in our enemies we most emphatically condemn. Those who cry out for retaliation for the destruction of the negroes at Fort Pillow, and who favor and encourage indiscriminate plunder and annihilation, lorget that their counsels, and their acts have brought about such barbarism, and they must share with the enemy the obloquy of the bloody work on that occasion. No amount of virtuous ladignation can fift the responsibility which posterity will place upon them. Let them, from the past learn wisdom and functure their counsels hereafter with some of that meroy which they ultimately expect for themselves from the final Judge of all mankind.

A Wonderful Discovery.-The stone masons engaged in laying the foundations of the new blacksmith shop, at the Rolling Mill of Wood Morrell & Co., in breaking a large sand-Wood Morrell & Co., in breaking a large sandstone in two, the other day, discovered a frog, pressed as flat as a cent and lying in a crevice or in the cavity stone, from which there was no visible outlet. As soon as it fell out it began to manifest symptoms of life, and before one hour; it was as large, plump and lively as any other frog. It appears, however, to be blind at present, but as the eyes appear perfect it may regain its sight. The rock from which it was taken was quarried from some of the spurs of the Laurel hill, about thirty years ago, when the Pennsylvania canal was constructed, and built in a wall, where it remained till afew days ago, when it was removed to be put in the foundation bofore mentioned.

Of the real age of his fog-ship we are in entire ignorance. It may be a pre-Adamite, an dation before mentioned.

Of the real age of his frog-ship we are in entire ignorance. It may be a pre-Adamite, an antediuvian or a post-dijuvian, or it may not be a millenarean or even a centenarian. The rock is a loose sand-stone formation, coarse in the grain and of a rusty color, and may not be very ancient. As there was no crevice in the stone except the bed in wheh it lay, it certainly has been there for the last thirty years, and it may have danced at mother Eve's wedding for aught we know. If it was in prison when the Barons at Ruhnemede extorted the Magna Chartafrom King John, it must have experienced a thrill of joy upon the reception of such cheering news, but then how depressed the poor thing must have fell when it learned that the trial by jury and the general jail delivery therein secured was not for frogs. If it could speak we would like to ask it something about the origin of the Indian tribes found on this continent by Columbus, and learn the precise site of the great town of Kinkenapawling. But it cannot speak, and all the fame it can ever acquire here below, is that it will be pronounced by all men as decidedly the "oldest living inhabitant" of the Western Continent now known.—Johnstown Dem.

the vicinity of Horner's Coal Works, four miles and a half up the Monongahela, an affray took place between two "tipplemen" named George Cox and Robert Gittinby, in which the latter received such injuries that he died very shortly afterwards. Cox had received instructions not to lend any of his employer's flats, and under these instructions refused to lend to Gittinby, who then succeeded in getting one from another empoyee of the same firm. The two men met on Saturday evening at a house kept by a man named Franey, and after drinking got to quareling about the flat transaction. As Cox was leaving, it is afleged, Gittinby called him a son of a b—h, whereupon he tuned and struck the others blow "on the but of the hig," knocking him down. Cox then went home, but was shortly afterwards arrested by Franey and some and a half up the Monongahela, an affray took him down. Cox then went home, but was shortly afterwards arrested by Franey and some neighbors, brought to this city and confined. He is a powerful man, weighing over two hundred pounds. The post morrem examination developed the fact that a lick given sideways had struck the right eye and upper part of the mose, fracturing the nose and one of the bones of the skull called the ethmoid bone, the latter injury being, in the Doctor's opinion, sufficient to produce death. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the facts.

Drowned .- On Monday morning a deck hand on the steamer Minerva, by the name of hand on the steamer Minerva, by the name of Peter Michael, while in the act of drawing a buckefful of water, fell overboard, from the lower guard of the boat, as she was lying at the wharf, and was drowned. He fell between the Minerva and Marmora, and, from the narrow space betrgeen, it is protable could not succeed in getting from beneath one or other of the boats. The body has not been recovered. The deceased was a Southern refugee and lived somewhere on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. He had been conscripted in the rebel army, but made his escape North, where he has been engaged as above stated. He is said to have possessed property in the South.

Cresson Springs .- This is the name given o the Watering Place, on the Penna. Railroad, at the summit of the Allegheny Mountain; in Cambria county. It is becoming a very popular summer resort, and it is said that over one hundred rooms are already engaged for the coming warm season. The Penna. Railroad Company have some thirty or forty hands now engaged there in the erection of a large Station House more suitable to the demands of this progressive age. Whea completed, this will be one of the largest and finest buildings of the kind, between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg. Its location is just in the rear of the present station house and somewhat nearer the Mountain House. From the appearance of the foundation, as marked out, it will be a very commodious building, capable of accommodating, at one time, several hundred passengers. This will make a large station house, but we doubt not that its capacity will often be tested. Not only the throng at these Springs will require accomodation at, and returning from this public resort, but the crowds of people from Southern Cambria, in attending court each term, will frequently swell the throng, as they change cars at this place. In addition to this there is another Watering Place near Loretto, large enough to Cambria county. It is becoming a very popular place. In addition to this there is another Watering Place near Loretto, large enough to accommodate several hundred persons, who leave the cars at this station and proceed in hacks or carriages to their place of destination. This place was well attended last summer and will, no doubt, be visited by many more persons during the approaching season. These, together with other transient travel, makes a commodious station house at this place a size gas nondious sightion house at this place a sine qua non, and we are glad to know that the Railroad company, actuated by a liberal spirit equal to the great demands of the times, are making ample preparations to meet and accommodate the rush that, the warm weather will force together there. Many of our citizens have heretofore visited there. Single and will accompany the treatment of the single sin Scattering, 137. A scoret ballot was determined on for Saturday, which was to last from two o'clock till six. The telegraph informs us that during that time Grant's majority was run up to 15,782. It was surmised, some days ago, in the New York papers that, at the eleventh hour, tho loyal league would come in with a batch of greenbacks sufficient to turn the scale against little Mac. This has no doubt, been the case. But, aithough the party in power have gained another victory on a field of their own choice, and by means of their own strategy, it is, like their others, the result of having full control of the public funds and of midnight secret collusion. While the election was open and free to all, the People voted, and their votes show the course of the popular current in favor of little Mac—the hero of Antietam. When the secret ballot was instituted, shoddy ruled, and Chase's manufacturing establishment prevailed over the public voice. Barren victory is What a noble set of men we have governing five country, who can any day turn aside to crush a political opponent! Happy thought of Shoddy to bring the two greatest generals of the North in a rivalry that neither of them could desire and doubtless regret, in order to crush one of them! But will the people let him go under even though Shod.

The Niagara Ship Canal .- The Chicago Post gives this project up, as follows: "It is now officially announced that the Illinois canal now officially announced that the Illinois canal bill is postponed. Its friends in New England and elsewhere suggested to the Illinois delegation not to bring it to a vote in the present condition of the country. It was urged that with victories to our arms, and a restoration of condition of the country. It were receive a decided majority. The Illinois delegation of both political parties, after consultations, yielded to the suggestions and consented to the postponement. Mr. Arnold abandoned his profession to go to Congress to have that ship canal constructed; he was re-elected for no other purpose than to have the money appropriated and to have the work commenced this spring. As no other-man can ever get the bill through, the alternative is presented to the people of this city to abandon the great military and naval necessity, and commercial highway, or to keep Mr. Arnold in Congress until the public credit is restored to par on a good basis. What is to be done: Shali we sacrifice the canal, or Mr. Arnold, or both?"

Rather Salty.-We have heard a great deal about the brutal treatment of Union soldiers in the Southern States, by the rebels, much of which we regret to say is too true, yet we are inclined to doubt some of these statements. One story is that several negroes were buried alive, and after three days of suffering in the abodes of the dead they crawled out of the prison of death and made their escape. There are other rumors equally incredulous. But the most astounding teem of news of this kind we find in the Commercial of this city, in the issue of the 23d inst., under the caption of "Horrible incident—Unparalleled Barbarism. A young Unionist east into a saltpeter cave and exists there for nine months?" Ac., taken from the Chattanooga Gasette. We think if the editors of that paper will turn to this article and see the cute of the Chattano oga editor, no man need be born again to see that it is double entendre. the Southern States, by the rebels, much of

The Birmingham Railway Accident. -The name of the man who was killed on the Birmingham passenger railroad on Friday was Birmingham passenger railroad on Friday was Matthew Masterson, a resident of Birmingham and beionged to the gunboat service. He had been on a visit to some friends in Zanesville, and had just returned on the day of his death. The coroner's inquest attached no blame to the conductor or driver, but condemned the practice of blocking up the platform of cars with merchandise. It will be recollected that some bales of oakum upon the occasion of the accident prevented the deceased from getting upon the car, and caused him to be thrown under the wheel.

Steamer Fired Into.-The "Silver Spray." now lying at our wharf, was fired at two or three times when passing Parkersburg, by Federal times when passing Parkersburg, by Federal soldiers. The last shot struck the water a short distance from the boat, and then glancing up, passed through a life boat and some other again cles on the hurricane roof! No one was injured. The boat was wanted to carry soldiers up the Kanawha, and that was the way taken to bring her to. When we lived in a Republic these things did not occur; now, however, when we live in a they do. That's the difference.
