SATURIAY, MORNING, MAY 14, 1884. LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Carnage.

We have endeavered up to this date to present a correct list of the killed and wounded Pennsylvanians in the late battles in Virginia, but the lists crowd upon us so rapidly and grow to such wonderful proportions that it is impossible to glean correctly the list from our own regiments. We would much rather omit the whole of them than make one mistake, and thus send a useless and crushing pang to the heart of relative or friend. It is sufficient to say that the carnage is enormous and unparalleled in the annals of; warfare. The Daily Washington Chronicle comes to us with a list of four thousand wounded at two hospitals. Eastern Virginia is literally drenched with blood—with the youthful blood of a once proud and prosperous people-It is not merely the result of a battle nor of a series of battles, but battles for a series of days nd may be for months—a grand holicaust off ed daily to appease or to satiste the god of war. It would be impossible to depict the variety or the horror of the death-scenes witnessed on the fields of this Waterloo struggle—this Aceldama of human carnage and destruction. While we revel here in pleasure and pastime, our friends are writhing in indescribable torture upon the e-field, with no one to soothe their sorrows or to alleviate their sufferings. The present is an occasion and a time for Sanitary and Chris. s to bestir, themselves and, if scess can be had to the hospitals and battlefields, to administer comfort and consolation to the poor suffering soldier. We believe the city of Pittsburgh has responded promptly and efectually to the demands now upon them for aid, and it is to be hoped many wounded and dying soldiers will be relieved, though with every effort made, it is still evident that many must perish without a friend near to offer them con-

Meeting of the City Councils.-The City Councils held a special meeting last night or the purpose of increasing the pay of the ice. An ordinance was passed increasing the pay of said Police, the Captain to get $2 10 per night, and the others $2 00. Privilege was granted the Inland Telegraph Company to put wires in the city under the direction of the Street Committee. Ordinances were passed in regard to the paving and grading of Washington and Wilkins streets, and the widening of Webster street. Several petitions were presented, one in favor of granting the Allegheny Valley Railroad company the right to construct a branch railroad along Allegheny street. A resolution was passed that the City Councils attend the funeral Brig. Gen. Alexander Hays, lately killed in battle and that the Mayor of the city, Mr. Lowry, be solicited to accompany them.
