THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 16, 1884. THE CHICAGO CONVENTION,

There is a difference of opinion expressed by many of our Democratic contemporaries, as to the policy of holding our National Convention so early as the coming Fourth of July. The people's minds, however, being fixed upon to the Grand Jury. that day for the Convention to assemthat day for the Convention to assem-ble, and the Fourth being but a few weeks off, it would perhaps be incon-venient to postpone it, and yet it strikes us that such a course might prove ad vantageous to the country. So far as mere men are concerned, the Democrats are not expected to imi. tate their opponents, by packing their Convention in favor of any particular candidate. Leaving men out of the question, therefore, we do not perceive why the Chicago Convention may not, with The Chicago Convention may not, with great propriety, be postponed for two months at least. Not to be fearless in the discharge of your duty is as much a disregard of a grand juror's oath as to yield to a more corrupt motivs. This suggestion is made more particularly in reference to a mat-ter about to be submitted to you, which, in one espect of it arraigns the conduct in one aspect of it, arraigns the conduct of agents of the General Government, acting, it is said, under its orders, and the conduct so closely that he fought two battles on he to imitate the great example of Mc-
