de camp—Col. Colburn. There was a lesson to be drawn from the death and services of these glorious men which should be read for the present and future benefit of the nation. War in these times was a science, and it ought to be clear to the most predjudiced that the organization and command of armies, and the high combination of strategy, perfect familiarity with the theoretical science of war is requisite. To count upon success when plans and execution of campaigns are intrusted to men who have no knowledge of war, is as idle as to expect the legal wisdom of a Story, or a Kent from a skillful physician. What was the honorable and holy cause for which these men laid down their lives? Twas the cause of Union and its laws. Soon after the close of the revolutionary war, it was found that the laws. Soon after the close of the revolutionary war, it was found that the Confederacy which had grown up during the remarkable contest was fast fal-ling to pieces from its own weight. The ling to pieces from its own weight. The central power was too weak; it could only recommend to the States such measures as seemed best, and it posses sed no real power to legislate, because it lacked, the executive force to compel obedience to its laws. The nations credit, and self-respect had disappeared, and it was feared by the friends of human liberty throughout the world, that ours was but another added to the long list of fruitless attempts, at self government. The attempts at self government. The nation was upon the brink of ruin and dissolution, when, some eighty years ago, many of the wisest and most patriotic of the land convened to seek a remedy for the evils which threatened to destroy the great work of the revolution. Then sessions were long and stormy and for a time the most sanguine doubted the probability of a successful termination to their labors. But from smid the conflict their labors. But from amid the conflict of sectional interest, of party prejudices and of personal selfishness, the wisdom and conciliation at length evoked the Constitution under which we have lived so long. It was not found in a day, but was the result of patient labor, of lofty wisdom, and of the purest patriotism It was at last adopted by the people of ill the States, although by some reluctantly, not as being exactly what all desired, but as being the best possible under the circumstances. It was accepted as giving as a form of government under which the nation inight live happily and prosper—so long as the people should be influenced by the same sentiment which actuated those who formed it, which would not be liable to destruction from internal causes and long as the second internal causes so long as the people preserved the recollection of their miseries and calamities which led to their adoption. Underthis beneficent Constitution the progress of the nation was unex-ampled in history. The rights and lib-erties of its citizens were reserved from the control of the savage and the wild heast, and added to the domain of civilization and the Union. The arts and vears the threatened evils were averted. obliterated the recollection of the calam-

To efface the insult offer ed to our flag, to secure ourselves from the fate of the divided republics of Italy or South America, to preserve our Govits just power and laws, to maintain our very existence as a nation, these were the causes which impelled us to draw the sword. Rebellion against a government like ours which contains the means of self-adjustment and a pacific remedy for evils, should never be compounded with a revolution against despotic power, which refuses redress of wrongs. Such a rebellion cannot be justified upon eth-ical grounds, and the only alternatives for are choice are its suppression or the destruction of our nationality. At such a time as this, and in such a struggle, political partnership should be merged political parinership angulu be merged in a true, and brave patriotism, which thinks only of the good of the whole country. ASTOUNDING REVELATIONS. Senator Wilson, chairman of the Military Committee in the Senate, in a recent debate upon a motion to amend the onscription law, stated that since the 17th of Oct. last, six hundred thousand white men and one hundred thousand negroes have been enlisted in the Union rmies; he, also, stated that since that time one hundred and twenty-five million dollars were expended in bounties. Seven hundred thousand men since last October is a pretty heavy draft upon the people, especially in view of the present and coming conscriptions. But what in the name of all that's horrible, have become of these men?
