LOCAL INTELLIGENCE

MONDAY MORNING, JULY 25, 1864. The Present Scarcity of Labor.

very serious consideration occurs to the minds of several of our citizens at present, especially of those who are carrying on a large miness in the manufacturing line, and who need a large amount of hands in order not to be obliged to suspend business. The consideration is this, how are hands to be procured after the present draft will have drained the country of its working material and left all business nearly at a stand still ! It would not pay to end business, neither would it do so, to expend a large amount of money to carry on business during the scarcity, as labor will then have redoubled its price. What then sie we to do? Shall we expect a large immigration of working men, who would undertake to do our work until our own men return from the field 1 Their arrival would be a godsend to us, but it still remains within the last, verge of bility. We announced a report which came from Washington, to the effect that 10,000 Swiss emigrants were waiting at Havre and either train other French ports to find transportation to America. But these emigrants are coming so slowly, that one would think that they had already settled down in France, or that the war will be over by the time they arrive. A large number of laborers would be very desirable during the present crisis, and we will have to exert ourselves to our utmost in order to induce them from the Eastern States. It is reported oui delay, that the longshoremen in Boston are receiving DBAPH MEYER ... four dollars per day for their work. Such pay even at the present time is enormous, and we JOSEPH MEYER & SON, do not think the statement worthy of much oredit, but certain it is, that they receive high

The alarm spread, and the next day two or three hundred persons went to the mountain in quest of the missing man, but without avail. The search has continued every day since, the numbers still in-creasing. Yesterday, not less than fifteen hundred persons from Johnstown, and vicinity, started early in the morning for the Laurel Hill, determined, if possible, to learn what has become of him. His father, John Wertz, and his mother are almost distracted during the fearful suspense in regard to his whereabouts The urel Hill is a dense forest, near fifteen miles wide and running through the State, full of deep ravines, whose tortuous windings form a labyrinth in which any one may be easily lost. The thick underbrush, too, makes this wilderness still more solitary and dreary. The men in search at night built fires at
