

The Daily Post

PITTSBURGH, SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 30, 1864.

WHAT GREAT CONSPIRACY.

It now looks very much as if the leading members of the Administration intended devoting their time to the conducting of sensational falsehoods, in order to insure the reelection of their buccan candidates. They seem to think the gullibility of the people inexhaustible, and act accordingly. The lying romance of Col. Jacobs, now acknowledged to be such, in "have said that he had been captured by the rebels, and would stay him, ought to have satisfied his Abolition co-conspirators for a short season at least; but no, it appears only to have stimulated them to the fabrication of greater and more glaring falsehoods. As an instance we refer to yesterday's published report of an alleged "Western conspiracy."

INCREASED EXPENSES OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Owing to the largely increased expenses of the Government, an official announced by Mr. Chase in his proposal for the new loan, it is estimated that $4,000,000 a day will hardly be sufficient to meet the accumulating requisitions upon the Treasury. The total number of men called out for the army under the various proclamations up to this time has been 1,139,000. Added to this is the navy, including 588 vessels and 48,000 seamen. The annual expenditures of the Government are now, we do not doubt, $5,000,000 fully, for not only must the soldiers be fed and clothed, but the myriad of big and little negroes. "The hit-train" must foot the bill, and it looms give out—even the stupendous liberalities of Congress fall far short of the length and breadth of the philanthropic needs of this era of "colored" benevolence. Mr. Chase's steam presses, and his white paper and great ink, must come to the rescue and save the nation! It appears also from the above statement, that there has been over two millions of men called out to suppress this little "sixty day rebellion," and the end is not yet.

A Singular Incident.

A very singular occurrence was noted in the Tenth Massachusetts yesterday. A sergeant had been engaged by the Second division hospital the day previous in placing upon a number of headboards the names of members of his regiment who had been killed in the late fight or had died in battle, which were to mark their last resting place. There was one board in excess, and in a sportive vein he placed with a lead pencil his own name upon it, and the date of his demise. The next day he was struck by a bullet and expired, and he was about to leave for home. Yesterday, while near the front bidding his companions in other regiments farewell, he was struck in the breast by a twenty four pound Parrott and instantly killed. He was interred to-day and his headboard placed in the cemetery, with the name of the Northern man and his rank upon it, under circumstances.

LOYAL.

The Chronicle of the 17th in an editorial on the war news says: "But if our authorities will, the many warnings they have had, again ought to be heeded, and if they do not manage better another time they deserve to be disposed of shot."

THE FOURTH OF AUGUST NEXT.

The termination of this war in an honorable peace, and the reconstruction of the country both North and South on the solid basis of a sincere friendship, is ever and a project dear to the heart of every American citizen, whether he believes in the Abolition principles of the Administration, or sustains the old system of Democracy and state rights. No doubt, this war is directed to that purpose, and all our efforts, and the efforts of our grand army are concentrated towards that noble end. No man, not even a Republican dare say in defiance of the indignation of the people that we are fighting for the Abolition of slavery, that we are squandering our property by assisting the expropriation of this war for no other reason than the manumission of slaves, that we are risking our lives in the battles of slavery, or that this is the only obstacle between us and the enjoyment of peace. No man would be rash enough to sustain these principles, nor would the people submit to it patiently if they thought that the plains of Virginia were covered with the bones of the heroes of American freedom, the freedom of a few slaves, or that the country should face the dangers of disunion, and the subversion of a united government for such a motive. We therefore are fighting for the union and this is the principle cause, yet while we are endangering the happiness and welfare of the country for the sake of a few slaves, we are not only our own individual interests but the interests of the entire union, require that we should embrace every opportunity of obtaining an honorable peace, and reinstating the former condition of wealth and prosperity. Even the common feelings of citizens and friends which we regard as the South, should interest us in their behalf and instigate us to suspend this sanguinary warfare as soon as it becomes compatible with our honor as individuals and as citizen members of one free and independent nation. Every man in the full way of his reason and sound judgment, who is not a hypocrite, and who is not a hypocrite, who we should terminate this war as soon as possible, and not only for our own sake, but for the sake of the South, and the sake of the Union, and the sake of the world.

NEWSPARAGRAPHS.

YELLOW FEVER ON BIRMINGHAM.—It is stated that a most disastrous epidemic is raging on board the United States steamer "Thames," now at quarantine, New York. On Thursday the vessel offered $100 a day, and sailors $3 to remain on board and take care of the ship, nearly all her crew being prostrated with yellow fever. Over seventy sick men have been removed on shore within a few days.

THE SCENE PRESENTED AT Chattanooga since Gen. Sherman's arrival, is a sad one to the citizens, is represented as being sorrowful in the extreme. Aged women, and children crowd around the arms begging for bread, and such a situation has been seldom witnessed. These are the sorrowful effects of this war, which are felt acutely by the widow and the orphan, but which have as yet not appeared in their real light to the originators of it.

A PRIVATE in the 4th Vermont regiment named Stone, a young man of about eighteen years of age, from Windsor, is reported to have escaped capture in the late affair on the Weldon railroad, near York. During the conflict several things, he fell among the dead, and when he obtained food, and applying his hands to his face, he found that he had a bullet in his forehead. He was sufficiently dazed, he had a sudden resurrection, and ran, making his way to the woods, and he was taken to the hospital.

EXTRACTS from official documents in the Treasury Department show to what a degree of corruption and depravity some of the employees of our Treasury Department were guilty. The statements of some of the witnesses are shocking in the extreme, and we are sorry to see that the Treasury Department is so much disgraced. In this case some of the statements were inserted in the public prints. Such accounts as these should not be made public, but they are so, and they have found way into the bosoms of families and which might tend to endanger the morality of our youth.

THE question of the liability of the one hundred day militia men to be drafted during their absence is now definitely settled by a letter from Provost Marshal General Fry, in which he states that the same rule will be applied to them as was applied to the State militia, viz: Their one hundred days' service will not count against them if they are not counted on the time for which they were drafted. This rule is not to be observed in New York, but in all other States, men are not liable to draft till the expiration of their term of enlistment.

A TRAGIC explosion was caused at Durham's powder mill in Wilmington on the 23rd inst. which resulted in the total destruction of two of the mills and in the more or less serious injuries of several persons. The explosion was heard at a great distance, and was, it is said, by some disarrangement in the mill, it is true, had his jokers, but they were practical ones, and told for the good of the country. Lincoln's jokes were not so good, and tell to the damage of the nation.

SECRETARY FESSENDEN'S appeal to the people to aid in supplying the Government with funds, shows that our finances are in a most critical position. It is a matter of course, that the Secretary having failed to come to any arrangements with the New York bankers, has issued this appeal to the loyal citizens of the North. This is a last resource, and if we do not respond to his call, foreign aid will be our only hope, in sustaining the expenditures of the war.
