We want him to do that Mark wou! Wo don't want him to interfere, and I don't think he will try it after this demonstration.

it Nowamy friends, I know how anxsions you altareto get through (with the iglorious doings of this day. Fish not going to detain you. Nor am I going to asy that I: will support the ticket. Great Goding never did snything else. [Cheers] all will not only support it but I will do it with all my heart, with all my might, and with all my cheerrilto epeak to him as direturned from the polls, because he was on the ticket; and, my friends, I take it for granted, and adways have taken it for granted, that, whatever else happens in the world, God and the people can't be wrong. [Applause] I came here without any personnat feelings in this business. I have no desire, but that the desires of others shall be gratified. I think now that any fears which some of our triends may have entertained in regard to this eminent man already nominated are with-outany foundation. I will tell you ewhy... We have had Presidents of the why...! We have had Presidents of the United States before this who commandand the whole army and navy, and were reictorious Generals. Did they do us any harm? Did Andrew Jackson en siave his country? [Loud and enthus-instic cheering.] Did he employ armies to silence the clamors of a few factionists in South Carolina in Not at all. How many men did he send to the Bastile? Notono. He was a military man, with military instincts as strong as Gen. Mc-Chellan, and with this difference: that Jackson came in upon his own popular-its; and McCfellan comes in as a man believed by the democratic party to be fitted for this particular em McClellan has been suggested by the perilous condition of the country for reasons, all of which have been given to the people, but it makes no difference whether they have been given to the people or not; there is a secret instinct in the breast of every Democrat which at night, when he is slone, and passes his eye over the darkened aspect of this country, will lead him to feel and see a reason to have some person of McClellan's stripe near at hand. [Applause.] Do you understand it? Due army, this great citizen many thousands of you are slaughtered to-day I will draw, a drag net through the country and haul up as many more to be slaughtered to morrow, [Loud cheers.] Wothing of that kind: We do not want a cold blooded joker at Wushington who, while the District of Columbia is infested with hospitals, and the atmosphere burdened by the groans and sighs of our mangled countrymen; when he can spare a minute from Joe Miller's are those we went a man who can entertain a proper appreciation of their sufferings-a man who knows what a soldier means when he points to a missing arm and says "This arm was lost at such a battle;" or raising a mutilated hand; says: "This hand! was fractured at such a battle—this limb was broken at such a battle, where I rought a your order in defence of the Government of my country, as you told me." When a soldier comes to George B. McClellan he will not be answered in a ribald joke. The soldiers all understand this thing. They know what the Democratic party means; that, so long as the army exists under democratic rule, the brave children of the country who have enrolled themselves under its banners will be respected, regarded and cared for, their pensions paid, their families brovided for, because there will be some humanity as well as blood in this business. There will be no call upon half a million of young men to go and be cut to pieces under any pretence, hashed worse than animals, worse than hashed worse than animals, worse than the Roman gladiators, and then come hank to be put off with a jest. [Cheers] They will all know, every one of them that Gen. McClellan is no joker, and will know, every one of them, when they are told to fight, that it will be for something that is constitutional and legitimate, and when they are told the fighting is ended they will be willing to say "Welf, General, Mr. President. I expect you are grout right." Willingly and cheerfully they will acquiesce in the decision of the nation as exhibited in the person of the President. The army will threw up their caps in spite of subordinates, because the election of Gen. McClellan will reconnect them with a gentleman. Hitherto issued and plans devised to cut off the army from the people, to separate them and array them against each other, and that has been the great danger of the last four years. This vote will reconnect the army with the people, and give the civil the paramount author over the military of the country.

> An Able Speech. We direct attention to the fine speech of Hon. Wm. Allen, of Ohio, delivered atthe Chicago Convention, published on the first page of this morning's Post. AMOTHER INFAMOUS SLANDER.

The Abolition enemies of McClellan are base enough for anything; they are now engaged in manufacturing history, Jest Book, looks out upon the acres of now engaged in manufacturing history, hospitals and linquires, "What houses intended to prove him not only a coward but a traitor. The following extract, purporting to be taken from a history of the Peninsula campaign, in relation to the battle of Malvern Hill by Rev. J. J. MARKS is the latest specimen: Rev, J. J. Marks is the latest specimen:

"It is one of the strangest things in this week of disaster that Ceneral McClellan ordered a retreat to Harrison's Landing, six miles down the James river, after we had gained so decided a victory. When this order was received by the impatient and eager army, consternation and amazement overwhelmed our patifolic and arident; hosts. Some refused to obey the command. Gen. Martindale sheft tears of shame. The brave and chivalrous Krarrey said in the presence of many officers: "I Philip Kearney, an eld soldier, enter my solem, protest against this order for retreat—we ought, instead of retreating, to follow up the enemy and take Richmond. And in full view of all the responsibility of such a declaration, I say to you all, such an order can only be prompted by cowardice or treason."

a day or you can, cause as orner can only on prompted by consordice or treason."

And with all hopelesaness and despair succeeded the flush of triumph. In stience and gloom our victorious army commenced retiring from an enemy utterly broken, scattered and namica.trickan and enterny utterly proken, scattered and panile-stricken.

And when there was not a fee within miles of us, we left our wounded belind to perish, and any one witnessing the wild esgerness of our retreat, would have supposed that we were in the greatest peril from a vigilant and triumphant enemy."

We ask the reader of this, if he has sented to the General Court at Boston, a neighbor who was under McClellan that body issued an order which may during the seven days fights alluded to, still be seen on the court records, bearing the signature of Edward Rawson, to give him this slander of his General, which is copied and endorsed by the Secretary, by which the Treasurer of the county was "fully empowered to sell Pittsburgh Commercial. All we desire is that the soldlers who have survived the campaign in question, shall have infamous calumny.

The Rev. J. J. MARKS was the Chaplain of the 63d Penna. Regiment, which was captured at Savage Station before the battle of Malvern Hill was fought. 'So that instead of his being an eye witness to that engagement, he was a prisoner in Richmond when it took place. The reader may infer from this new fabrication the sort of campaign the Abolitionists intend carrying on against the of the country of the

The Abolitionists content themselves with managing to secure the soldiers' votes; the soldiers comfort never enters into Abolition calculations. The above resolution, passed by the representative of the Democracy of the nation, has awakened public attention and already we hear of petitions being in circulation to affect its purpose. "People, in these salamitous times, think intensely and profoundly; and they reason and discriminate logically and severely. They are not blind to the fact that men in high places sometimes mistake pride and obstinacy for honor and firmness; and the conclusion to which many of them have arrived, that some such mistake has been made in the marter of the exchange of prisoners is not calculated to strengthen the government in this terrible hour of trial. They think too, of the awful cry of agony which is perpetually ascending to Heaven from that slaughtering-pen at Andersonville—whether uttered in prayer, the language of Faith and Hope or in groanings which cannot be uttered, or in curses and blasphemy, the out-bursting of desperation and despair—and ask themselves whether that cry is calculated to bring down upon our Government the favor or the wrath of God!" this neighborhood:

The question of the authorship of Ju-
